FLYERS NEAR RECORD

ENDURANCE FLIGHT CONTINUES AS FUEL TAKEN EIGHTH TIME

Army Officials Say
"Question Mark" To Stay Up Ten Days

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 3.—The army plane, Question Mark, roared back and forth between here and San Diego today, nearing its forty-eighth hour in the air in its attempt to smash the world's endurance mark.

Refueled and provisioned from tender planes, the trimotored Fokker carrying five men has been in the air since 7:26 a. m. Pacific time Tuesday.

Army officials predicted the Question Mark would stay up ten days or more.

The endurance record of a plane carrying its own fuel is sixty hours and seven minutes and now is held by Ristic and Zimmerman of Germany.

The Question Mark was refueled the eighth time shortly after midnight when it arrived over Van Nuys after one of its many trips to San Diego.

The load of fuel was transferred in seven minutes.

Only once has the transfer of fuel been marred by an accident. Spatz was burned slightly when the nose sprayed gasoline over the plane cabin yesterday. Lieut. Elmwood Quesada was overcome by the fumes.

Lieut. Major Spatz dropped a note saying he was not injured seriously, and that zinc oxide, sent to the plane by a rope, had allayed the pain of the burns.

Lieutenant Quesada was seen by other aviators lying on a bunk in the Question Mark cabin reading a magazine, indicating that he felt no bad effects from the gasoline fumes.

Meals, including hot coffee and cereals, have been swung to the flyers in a container on the end of a rope as it dangles from the refueling plane.

Others of the crew besides Spatz and Quesada are Capt. Ira C. Eaker, chief pilot; Lieut. H. A. Halverson and Sgt. Roy Hoos, mechanic.

Hoos at intervals climbed from the cabin and crawled perilously along the catwalk to render first aid to one of the three motors that pull the Question Mark. At first he complained of the cold but a pair of fur-lined boots were sent to him. The next time he crawled out to adjust a motor he had them on. Observers noted as they flew along watching the army machine, "Blackboard" planes with messages to the crew written on their sides greet the endurance flyers at intervals.

More than four tons of fuel and provisions have been transferred to the Question Mark from the contact planes. That included 1,400 gallons of gasoline, weighing three and one-half tons, seventy gallons of oil, five gallons of water, and a hundred pounds of food.

Major Spatz has handled 650 pounds of supplies by hand in the nine contacts.

Transfer of the 1,400 gallons of gasoline took only fifty-six minutes in the air as compared with usual hour and a half on the ground.

NEW CHAMPION

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 3.—Miss Bobbie Trout, 18-year-old Los Angeles aviatrix, was the new world's champion woman endurance flyer today, having flown her airplane continuously for twelve hours and eleven minutes.

The former endurance record was nine hours, six minutes, set by Viola Gentry at Mitchel Field, N. Y.

Miss Trout did not appear fatigued as she brought her plane to the ground gracefully and waved to the large crowd.

The army fliers in the Question Mark, making an endurance flight over southern California, dropped a congratulatory note to Miss Trout.

The note, written shortly before she landed read:

"The crew of the Question Mark sends warmest regards to the woman endurance flyer and hopes she will set a high record for others to aim at."

COMMISSION MEETS

The Greene County Board of Commissioners will hold its annual organization meeting next Monday, under the law which fixes the date of the yearly meeting for the first Monday of every year. Herman Eavey, president of the board, announced Wednesday.

EX-CONGRESSMAN ILL

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—William C. Adamson for twenty years congressman from Georgia and until a year ago judge of the U. S. Customs Court here is critically ill with lobar pneumonia at Presbyterian Hospital here.

COOPER JURY PICKED

Represent U. S. on Reparations

Rufus G. Dawes (left), brother of Vice-President Dawes and widely known Chicago banker, and Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric Co., will represent the United States in settling the vexing problem of German reparations.

COMMISSION MAY SELECT NEW MAYOR AT MEETING NEXT WEEK

Appointment of a successor to John W. Prugh, who will resign as mayor and member of City Commission soon to accept his appointment by Governor-elect Myers J. Cooper as state building and loan superintendent, may be considered by City Commission at its 1929 organization meeting January 8.

Mayor Prugh was heartily endorsed for the post by the building and loan associations of Ohio.

BARLING PILOTS FAIL TO SET RECORD

MARSHALL, Mo., Jan. 3.—Although their attempt to set a new endurance flight record ended in failure, pilots of the diminutive Barling NB-3 were enthusiastic over the success of their method of refueling the plane from the ground.

The proposed sustained flight ended last night ten hours and fifty-four minutes after they had taken off. The plane was landed after Leonard Rhiner, of Kansas City, co-pilot, accidentally permitted the wheels of the small ship to touch ground when he was attempting to throw out a note and a broken chain.

Knowing they would be disqualified, Blaine M. Tuxhorn, pilot-inventor of the ejector which flung to them the fuel from the ground, took over the controls, circled the field and landed.

During the time they were in the air they had made ten pickups of fuel and other supplies by means of the "synchronized ejector pickup."

RACES TO BEDSIDE OF ILL CHILD

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 3.—W. S. Perutz, Hartford theater manager was thought today to be near the end of his plane-and-train race to the bedside of his dying son in Cincinnati.

Learning that his 7-year-old boy, Carroll, was critically ill after a severe attack of scarlet fever at the home of Cincinnati friends, Perutz chartered a plane at Brainard Field here last night and took off for Hadley Field, N. J.

The theater man was piloted by Lieutenant Charles Wright and was later reported to have landed at Hadley Field. An automobile had been ordered to stand ready to rush Perutz to New Brunswick where he transferred to a fast express bound for the Ohio city.

Perutz came to Hartford several weeks ago from Seattle, Wash. Later Mrs. Perutz and Carroll started east to join him. They stopped at Cincinnati with friends and there Carroll was stricken with scarlet fever. His condition became serious last night and Mrs. Perutz telephoned her husband, who without stopping to pack a bag, began the night drive to Jersey.

THIRTEEN JURYMEN SELECTED HERE FOR MURDER CASE TRIAL

Jurors Visit Death Scene
Testimony Started
Thursday

Eight men and five women comprise the jury impaneled late Thursday morning for the case of Gilbert Cooper, 49, Cedarville Twp., farm hand and trapper who is on trial for his life in Common Pleas Court in connection with the slaying of Caleb Hitchcock 23, whom he is charged with having shot to death during a quarrel near Cedarville November 24.

The jury, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff George Susden, was taken to inspect the scene of the crime Thursday morning and presentation of state's testimony was scheduled to begin shortly after court re-convened at 1:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

A precedent for Greene County was established when thirteen jurors were selected. The thirteenth juror will substitute for any one of the regular jurors, who because of illness or some other good reason is unable to serve. This trial marks the first time an extra juror has ever been chosen for murder trial in this county, but it is a common practice in other counties.

Following is the jury: George Hare, Beaver Creek Twp.; John Oster, Miami Twp.; Fremont Miers, Spring Valley Twp.; Emma Cosler, Beaver Creek Twp.; Ellen White, Xenia City; D. D. Jones, Xenia City; Vesta Ireland, Xenia Twp.; James P. Zell, Miami Twp.; Ruth Ream, Jefferson Twp.; Clara Sheets, Xenia City; Guy Coy, Beaver Creek Twp.; Horace Shaw, Miami Twp.

W. A. Stewart, Miami Twp., is the extra juror.

It took all day Wednesday and the better part of Thursday morning to obtain a jury. Court was adjourned at 4 p. m. Wednesday when a special venire of sixty names had been exhausted and a jury had not been selected.

Another panel of twenty-five names was drawn under instructions of Judge R. L. Gowdy and service on the prospective jurors was obtained late the same afternoon.

When a jury was finally completed about 10:30 a. m. Thursday, eighty-one of the total of eighty-five available veniremen had been examined, leaving only four more to be called. Many of the prospective jurors in the second panel were incapacitated because of illness.

Attorney Frank L. Johnson defended counsel, used fourteen of his sixteen peremptory challenges and Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall all of his four challenges.

As the court room is comparatively small, seats Wednesday and Thursday were at a premium. The corridors were cluttered with "trial fans" and prospective jurors.

KILLED BY FUMES

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 3.—Adelbert Pennington, 69, president of the Pennington Metal Weather Strip Company, Lakewood, was found dead in his garage shortly after midnight. Dr. Leslie C. Taylor said death was caused by carbon monoxide gas. Police said death was accidental.

TOY REMOVED FROM INFANT'S THROAT

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 3.—Eighteen months old Frankie Brooks who had a toy motorcycle lodged in his throat for three weeks, has won his fight against death.

The toy was removed from the baby's throat late yesterday by Dr. H. H. Haggert who reported today that Frankie was "in fine shape."

Frankie's case received nationwide attention when it became known that physicians at his home, Asco, W. Va., and at Bluefield, were unable to recover the obstacle.

The baby was brought here by his frantic parents but pneumonia developed, preventing Dr. Haggert from operating. The pneumonia was finally cured and Dr. Haggert operated at once.

Frankie swallowed the toy while eating popcorn.

BOLIVIA ACCEPTS PROTOCOL FOR ARBITRATION OF DISPUTE

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Jan. 2.—The Bolivian government has accepted the protocol for arbitration and conciliation of the Gran Chaco border dispute with Paraguay.

Announcement of Bolivia's acceptance was made last night. Paraguay already had accepted the protocol.

The government said signing of the protocol would take place at Washington, where the Pan-American conference now is in session.

The protocol provides for arbitration of the Gran Chaco border dispute by a commission composed of representatives of five nations, the United States, Cuba, Brazil, Uruguay and Argentina.

Uncertainty of the boundary between Bolivia and Paraguay in the Gran Chaco territory has been of long standing, and two agreements reached at separate times were never ratified. In the dispute last month Bolivian troops advanced to the territory claimed by both countries and for a time war threatened.

HEARST AND DURANT YEARN FOR TEMPERANCE

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—W. C. Durant, who paid $25,000 for a plan to enforce prohibition, and W. R. Hearst, who has offered $25,000 for a plan to repeal it sought to get together today on the common ground of temperance.

Durant sent a telegram to Hearst congratulating him upon "this contribution of yours to the question: are the American people ready to give up and admit the failure of this (prohibition), the greatest experiment ever undertaken by a free people?"

He expressed perfect accord with Hearst's views.

"I cannot believe," Durant said, "that, pending repeal, you countenance nullification of part of the constitution by non-observance and non-enforcement, turning the country over to the organized bootleggers, hijackers, political corruptionists and murder gangs now rampant."

To which Hearst replied: "We are not so far apart as might seem at first glance. . . . I can assume, I think, that we are both equally sincerely interested in the cause of temperance; and the only difference of opinion as to what is the best means of promoting that cause."

BUCKLEY WILL BE ARRAIGNED SATURDAY; CLAIMS FRAME-UP

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 3.—Formal orders directing State Treasurer Bert B. Buckley and others indicted in connection with the Cincinnati beer investigation, to appear for arraignment at 12:30 p. m. Saturday, were issued today by the federal district attorney's office.

The orders were served by U. S. Marshal Stanley Borthwick and his deputies. They named Buckley, John L. Schrimper, Cincinnati attorney, and Joseph Sperber, brewmeister of the Jackson Brewing Company, Cincinnati.

Buckley returned from Dayton, his home, late yesterday, and it was said today that he would soon issue a statement relative to his indictment.

The treasurer and Schrimper and Sperber were indicted on charges of conspiring to offer bribes, in connection with the manufacture of real beer by the brewery.

An agreement was negotiated by Buckley this morning intimating he would employ counsel. He has denied any wrongdoing and claims Schrimper and others conspired to "frame" him.

The brewery's license, it was brought out yesterday, was revoked prior to the alleged violation.

TWO RESCUED AFTER FLOATING ON LAKE FOR THIRTEEN DAYS

Rum-Runner Drifts Helplessly As Fuel Is Exhausted

CLEVELAND, Jan. 3.—Two Clevelanders, rescued after floating helplessly on Lake Erie for thirteen days in the rum-runner Hannah, were expected to return to their homes here today after both avowed they were "through with the sea."

Rescued by the cutter Maitland yesterday, the two men with a Canadian companion were taken to Port Dover, Ont., where they were treated for exposure.

The Cleveland men said their names were Robert Hamilton and Clark Shrinshire. They refused to give addresses.

The Hannah, carrying 1000 cases of liquor, cleared from Erie, Ont., on Dec. 20, the men said. The boat is speedy, and expecting to reach Fairport, O., in a short time, no provisions were carried.

The boat ran into a storm and its fuel was exhausted in a vain attempt to make progress.

Several days ago the boat was blown close to Erie Pa., and one of the men, clad in a rubber suit, managed to reach shore, then the boat was blown back into the lake.

The Maitland discovered it yesterday, after airplanes and fishing boats from the Canadian side had been searching for days.

It was said that the rum-runner would be returned to its clearing port to comply with Canadian customs regulations. It may try to cross again, but the two Clevelanders told rescuers they would not be aboard if it docks.

CONNELLY NAMED TO SUCCEED M'QUIGG

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 3.—Appointment of Col. Ludwig S. Connelly, Cleveland, as brigadier general in command of the seventy-third infantry brigade, Ohio National Guard, to succeed the late Gen. John R. McQuigg was announced today by Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson.

Gen. Connelly's appointment carries with it changes affecting the 145th infantry, Cleveland and the 148th infantry, Toledo, which constitute the seventy-third brigade.

Col. William L. Marlin, Cleveland, is transferred from the 148th to the 145th infantry to fill the vacancy in the command of that regiment caused by the promotion of Col. Connelly.

Lieut. Col. Gilson D. Light, Toledo, is promoted to be colonel of the 148th infantry. Light has been adjutant of the thirty-seventh division since 1927.

Gen. Connelly served as captain and major of the 148th infantry during the World War.

CARL STUDER GETS PAROLE FROM PEN

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 3.—Carl Studer of Canton, sentenced to the state penitentiary on charges of operating a disorderly house during the time Don R. Mellett, editor of the Canton News, was assassinated, was freed on parole late yesterday.

It was supposed today that Studer returned directly to Canton. He had served two and a half years of a one to three year sentence. Mellett was slain while he was conducting an anti-vice crusade and Studer, prominent in Canton's jungle, was drawn into the net of the law. He denied any connection with the Mellett murder.

WOMAN AMONG FIVE HELD AFTER CHILD REVEALED NEW CLUE

Plead Not Guilty; Police Attempt To Force Confession

ORRVILLE, O., Jan. 3.—Four men and a hysterical woman, all members of the same family, were in the county jail at Wooster today, charged with complicity in the kidnapping of Melvin Horst, 4, missing since last Thursday, a week ago.

The five were rushed to the jail, under guard of a full force of Wayne County officers, after a secret arraignment before Mayor A. U. Weygandt, in the rear of the town hall, last night.

"I believe the child is still alive," Mayor Weygandt said after the arraignment. "Those in custody could tell us where he is. The actual kidnaper, I fear, is yet at large."

The five prisoners held are Elias "Nul" Arnold, 55, his two sons, Arthur, 25, and William, 30, his daughter, Mrs. Dorothy McHenry, 27, and her husband Bascom McHenry, 35.

Mrs. McHenry, tearful and nervous, collapsed during the examination of the prisoners prior to the arraignment last night. She is reported to have turned to her father and asked:

"Shall I tell them what they want to know?" "Nul" gruffly bade her to keep silent, officers said.

All of the five entered pleas of not guilty and were ordered held in default of $10,000 bond each. Junior Hanna, 7, a grandson of Arnold, is held in seclusion at Wooster on orders from prosecutor Walter J. Mougey. It was a story told by the boy that resulted in the arrests.

With the exception of William Arnold, who is an electrical supply dealer in Akron, all of those held live near the Horst home.

"We have evidence that the Arnolds frequently voiced their hatred of Marshal Raymond Horst, the missing boy's uncle, because he had arrested 'Nul' frequently," prosecutor Mougey said. "They have made threats that they would get even."

Melvin's parents were unknown to the Arnolds, Mougey said.

"From their statements, I am convinced that they believed Melvin was the son of the marshal, who lived in the same neighborhood," he said.

In the immediate vicinity of the Arnold home there is a vacant field where the children of the neighborhood have been in the habit of congregating. At the back of the Arnold home, a vicious police dog is tethered, according to Mougey.

Junior Hanna told searchers for the missing boy that he had seen Melvin pass through the alley at the side of the Arnold home late Thursday afternoon, and heard someone call to him from the Arnold home.

"Come here, Melvin, I have something for you," Junior said he heard a man say. Junior said he went on home. That's the last report searchers have of Melvin.

The Arnolds were questioned several times by Detective Carl Cagle, John "Peg" Stevens and Deputy Marshals Keiner, Rohrer and Pontius.

Elias Arnold, his son Arthur and McHenry said, according to the questioners, that they had attended a basketball game at Frederickburg the night Melvin disappeared, and had returned in time to join the search for the boy.

They took little interest in the search when it was continued Friday, officers said. Sheriff Albers F. Jacot and Prosecutor Mougey questioned the Arnolds again Sunday. They were taken to the town hall.

There, Mougey said, the investigators learned that William Arnold had visited the Arnold home here last Thursday night. His auto set in front of the house a while, then disappeared. He was seen at the window when Melvin was called into the yard.

The elder Arnold's auto also disappeared, Mougey said. It was these facts and discrepancies in the original stories were uncovered that Mrs. McHenry collapsed, according to the questioners.

News of the arrests spread of the town.

A crowd of the mayor's men and police gathered outside the town hall and shortly before the five the crowd attempted to spirit the prisoners.

They thronged close together, holding the mayor's men and police back, and then the five were taken to the jail building, in the town hall.

Announcement of Bolivia's acceptance was made last night. Paraguay already had accepted the protocol.

The government said signing of the protocol would take place at Washington, where the Pan-American conference now is in session.

The protocol provides for arbitration of the Gran Chaco border dispute by a commission composed of representatives of five nations, the United States, Cuba, Brazil, Uruguay and Argentina.

Uncertainty of the boundary between Bolivia and Paraguay in the Gran Chaco territory has been of long standing, and two agreements reached at separate times were never ratified. In the dispute last month Bolivian troops advanced into the territory claimed by both countries and for a time war was threatened.

BUCKLEY WILL BE ARRAIGNED SATURDAY; CLAIMS FRAME-UP

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 3.—Formal orders directing State Treasurer Bert B. Buckley and others indicted in connection with the Cincinnati beer investigation, to appear for arraignment at 12:30 p. m. Saturday, were issued today by the federal district attorney's office.

The orders were served by U. S. Marshal Stanley Bothwick and his deputies. They named Buckley, John L. Schrimper, Cincinnati attorney, and Joseph Sperber, brewmaster of the Jackson Brewing Company, Cincinnati.

Buckley returned from Dayton, his home, late yesterday, and it was said today that he would soon issue a statement relative to his indictment.

The treasurer and Schrimper and Sperber were indicted on charges of conspiring to offer bribes, in connection with the manufacture of real beer by the brewery.

The brewery's license, it was brought out yesterday, was revoked prior to the alleged violation.

Buckley this morning intimated he would employ counsel. He has denied any wrong-doing and claims Schrimper and others conspired to "frame" him.

KING GEORGE AGAIN
SUFFERS RESTLESS
NIGHT SAYS REPORT

LONDON, Jan. 3.—An official bulletin on the condition of King George issued this morning said: "The king passed a restless night. There is no change to record in his majesty's condition."

The bulletin, timed at 11:15 a. m., was signed by Sir Stanley Hewitt, Sir Hugh Kigby, and Lord Dawson of Penn.

The Daily News said today that King George still has not recovered strength enough to see any members of the royal family except the queen, who is admitted to the sick room whenever she wishes.

The queen's repeated insistence that the king take more nourishment has greatly lightened the task of the nurses who experienced considerable difficulty in persuading King George to allow them to feed him, the Daily News said. The king yielded to the queen's appeals that he make an effort to take nourishment.

Further encouragement that the king really was on the road to recovery was given with departure of Sir William Joynton-Hicks, home secretary for Mentone, France.

The home secretary said he had been assured by Lord Dawson that the physicians were satisfied with the king's progress, and pointed out that he would not leave England if there were any fears of a sudden relapse.

CAPITOL NOT EVEN NEAR BEER

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 3.—There isn't any beer in the Wisconsin capitol, federal prohibition agents were satisfied today after searching every nook and cranny of the big building.

The best sniffers on the local dry squad failed after a long and thorough hunt to find a truck load of beer, stored in the capitol for a celebration.

Just what celebration the beer was intended for and who was to drink it was not made public by prohibition agents.

REPORT SHIP IN DISTRESS

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—The Chatham, Mass., station of the Radio Marine Corporation today advised receipt of distress signals from the steamship Kobe at 38.45 degrees north and 52.12 degrees west.

The message said the Kobe had a broken rudder.

The steamship Anselma De Larrinaga was reported en route to assist the Kobe.

HEARST AND DURANT YEARN FOR TEMPERANCE

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—W. C. Durant, who paid $25,000 for a plan to enforce prohibition, and W. R. Hearst, who has offered $25,000 for a plan to repeal it sought to get together today on the common ground of temperance.

Durant sent a telegram to Hearst congratulating him upon "this contribution of yours to the question: are the American people ready to give up and admit the failure of this (prohibition), the greatest experiment ever undertaken by a free people?"

TWO RESCUED AFTER FLOATING ON LAKE FOR THIRTEEN DAYS

Rum-Runner Drifts
Helplessly As Fuel
Is Exhausted

CLEVELAND, Jan. 3.—Two Clevelanders, rescued after floating helplessly on Lake Erie for thirteen days in the rum-runner Hannah, were expected to return to their homes here today after both avowed they were "through with the sea."

Rescued by the car ferry Maitland late yesterday, the two men with a Canadian companion were taken to Port Dover, Ont., where they were treated for exposure.

The Cleveland men said their names were Robert Hamilton and Clark Shirlshire. They refused to give addresses.

The Hannah, carrying 1000 cases of liquor, cleared from Erieau, Ont., on Dec. 20, the men said. The boat is speedy, and expecting to reach Fairport, O., in a short time, no provisions were carried.

The boat ran into a storm and its fuel was exhausted in a vain attempt to make progress.

Several days ago the boat was blown close to Erie Pa., and one of the men, clad in a rubber suit, managed to reach shore, then the boat was blown back into the lake.

The Maitland discovered it yesterday, after airplanes and fishing boats from the Canadian side had been searching for days.

It was said that the rum-runner would be returned to its clearing port to comply with Canadian customs regulations. It may try to cross again, but the two Clevelanders told rescuers they would not be aboard if it docks.

CONNELLY NAMED TO SUCCEED M'QUIGG

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 3.—Appointment of Col. Ludwig S. Connelly, Cleveland, as brigadier general in command of the seventy-third infantry brigade, Ohio National Guard, to succeed the late Gen. John R. McQuigg was announced today by Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson.

Gen. Connelly's appointment carries with it changes affecting the 145th Infantry, Cleveland and the 148th Infantry, Toledo, which constitute the seventy-third brigade.

Col. William L. Marlin, Cleveland, is transferred from the 148th to the 145th Infantry to fill the vacancy in the command of that regiment caused by the promotion of Col. Connelly.

Lieut. Col. Gilson D. Light, Toledo, is promoted to be colonel of the 148th Infantry. Light has been adjutant of the thirty-seventh division since 1927.

Gen. Connelly served as captain and major of the 148th Infantry during the World War.

CARL STUDER GETS PAROLE FROM PEN

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 3.—Carl Studer of Canton, sentenced to the state penitentiary on charges of operating a disorderly house during the time Don R. Mellett, editor of the Canton News, was assassinated, was freed on parole late yesterday.

It was supposed that Studer returned directly to Canton. He had served two and a half years of a one to three year sentence.

Mellett was slain while he was conducting an anti-vice crusade and Studer, prominent in Canton's jungle, was drawn into the net of the law. He denied any connection with the Mellett murder.

WOMAN AMONG FIVE HELD AFTER CHILD REVEALED NEW CLUE

Plead Not Guilty; Police
Attempt To Force
Confession

ORRVILLE, O., Jan. 3.—Four men and a hysterical woman, all members of the same family, were in the county jail at Wooster today, charged with complicity in the kidnaping of Melvin Horst, 4, missing since last Thursday, a week ago.

The five were rushed to the jail, under guard of a full force of Wayne County officers, after a secret arraignment before Mayor A. U. Weygandt, in the rear of the town hall, last night.

"I believe the child is still alive," Mayor Weygandt said after the arraignment. "Those in custody could tell us where he is. The actual kidnaper, I fear, is yet at large."

The five prisoners held are Elias "Nul" Arnold, 55, his two sons, Arthur, 25, and William, 30, his daughter, Mrs. Dorothy McHenry, 27, and her husband Bascom McHenry, 35.

Mrs. McHenry, tearful and nervous, collapsed during the examination of the prisoners prior to the arraignment last night. She is reported to have turned to her father, and asked:

"Shall I tell them what they want to know?" "Nul" gruffly bade her to keep silent, officers said.

All of the five entered pleas of not guilty and were ordered held in default of $10,000 bond each.

Junior Hanna, 7, a grandson of Arnold, is held in seclusion at Wooster, according to Mayor Weygandt. It was a story told by the boy that resulted in the arrests.

With the exception of William Arnold, who is an electrical supply dealer in Akron, all of those held live near the Horst home.

"We have evidence that the Arnolds frequently voiced their hatred of Marshall Raymond Horst, the missing boy's uncle, because he had arrested 'Nul' frequently," prosecutor Mougey said. "They have made threats that they would get even."

Melvin's parents were unknown to the Arnolds, Mougey said.

"From their statements, I am convinced that they believed Melvin was the son of the marshal, who lived in the same neighborhood," he said.

In the immediate vicinity of the Arnold home there is a vacant field where the children of the neighborhood have been in the habit of congregating. At the back of the Arnold home, a vicious police dog is tethered, according to Mougey.

Junior Hanna told searchers for the missing boy that he had seen Melvin pass through the alley at the side of the Arnold home late Thursday afternoon, and heard some one call to him from the Arnold home.

"Come here, Melvin, I have something for you," Junior said. "He went on home. That's the last report searchers have of Melvin."

The Arnolds were questioned several times by Detective Carl Cagle, John "Peg" Stevens and Deputy Marshals Keiner, Roemer and Pontius.

Elias Arnold, his son Arthur and Melvin's uncle, according to the searchers, that they had attended a basketball game at Frederickburg the night Melvin disappeared, and had returned in time to join the search for the boy.

They took little interest in the search when it was continued Friday, officers said. Sheriff Albert S. Jact and Prosecutor Mougey questioned the Arnolds again Sunday. They were taken to the town hall.

There, Mougey said, the investigators learned that William Arnold had visited the Arnold home here last Thursday night. His auto set in front of the house a while, then disappeared. He was seen at the window when Melvin was called into the yard.

The elder Arnold's auto also disappeared, and did not return till Saturday, Mougey said. It was as these facts and discrepancies in the original stories were uncovered that Mrs. McHenry collapsed, according to the questioners.

News of the arrests spread of the town.

A crowd of town hall awaited the five the next day. They were taken to the prison, of years then that the mayor would hold the arraignment far rear of the jail building, in the town hall.

They thronged close to the mayor's quarters when the arraignment was held. The five were taken to the town hall.

EDUCATION BOARD NAMES OLD OFFICERS FOR ENSUING YEAR

Present officers of the City Board of Education were re-elected for the ensuing year at the school board's annual re-organization meeting Wednesday night.

James Adair was again chosen president, J. J. Stout, vice-president, and Louis Clark, secretary. Treasurer, Charles Bones and M. C. Smith are other board members.

The only other business transacted by the board was to appoint Maurice Jones, Jr., graduate of Langston University, Langston, Okla., to succeed the Rev. H. O. Mason, instructor in the manual training department at East High School for the last several years, who has resigned to re-enter the ministry.

Jones, who is classed as an all-around athlete, has completed work in special science at Wilberforce University. He received his degree of bachelor of science and education at Langston.

Jones has been appointed by Principal Arthur Taylor, of East High, to coach the school's basketball team throughout the remainder of the season. J. Wesley Curtis, who coached the football team in 1928 and has been giving instruction to the basketball squad, has been shifted to the position of faculty manager of athletics.

The new athletic mentor was All-American quarterback on the Langston football team for two years and also obtained recognition as a debater, having won the Pythian Oratorical debating contest of the Southwest at Oklahoma City in 1928.

PLEASANT WEST IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Pleasant West, 77, former resident of Springfield, died Wednesday evening at 6:05 o'clock, at the home of his son, Martin West, at Bellbrook. Death was caused by infirmities of age.

Mr. West resided in Springfield fifty-five years. He was an employee of the American Seeding Machine Co., many years. He was formerly a member of the Second Baptist Church and was a member of F. U. O. O. F. Lodge, Springfield.

Surviving are two daughters Mrs. Ada Portis and Mrs. Glenna Simpson, of Springfield and one son, Martin West of Bellbrook.

BEAVERCREEK HIGH NEWS

Beaver's basketball teams are showing real form on the hardwood lately, as Beaver Boys defeated the last Spring Valley quintette in their recent game with them, though the girls were not so successful on this particular occasion. The Jamestown games were also a satisfactory showing of team work and form. Beaver also scored a boys' victory over Bellbrook, 23-22.

The Christmas program given the afternoon before dismissal for Christmas holidays was as follows: Carols, sung by the high school; reading, Ruby Marshall; piano duet, Thelma Gentner and Rebecca Shoup; reading, Charlotte Geisler; selection, male quartette; remarks, by W. W. White, former Supt. selection by high school orchestra; "The Other Wise Man," by Rev. Learning; the annual Beaver "Christmas Pie" was then enjoyed by all.

We are glad to have Mr. Smith with us again, following his absence during the sickness and death of his little daughter, Carolyn. Mrs. Neff (formerly Miss Ruth Whittington, teacher of last year) substituted ably in his absence.

One of the recent events was the presentation of the last year's class picture by the president of last year's class, Abraham Anders. We immediately found place to hang the likenesses of our former classmates, of the class of 1928, and are very glad to have their smiling faces to look upon throughout the year. Owing to the absence of the president of the class of 1929, Mary Haverstick, Don Sayre, vice president, made the cordial speech of acceptance on behalf of the high school.

We have changed the school schedule slightly by taking up a half hour earlier at noon, thus cutting some time off the noon hour in order to begin the afternoon's work that much earlier. The dismissal of part of the school not otherwise employed is now at 3:30, thus using the same number of hours in the afternoon schedule as heretofore. The change was made to avoid putting the basketball and physical training classes' practices just before or just after the noon hour and noon meal, as heretofore, which former practice is considered detrimental to the health. By this moving up of the entire afternoon school hours, we are enabled to have the girls' basketball practice from 2:45 to 3:30, and the boys' practice from 3:30 to 4:15. On days we have physical training classes for those not engaged in basketball, these classes continue during their regular periods until 4 p. m. On other days those not engaged in basketball are dismissed at 3:30. By taking up school one half hour earlier at noon, we are able to run this schedule, and yet not take any time off the regular afternoon full schedule of classes with full periods for all classes.

YOUNG PEOPLE GUESTS AT WATCH PARTY.

Miss Reva Devoe, Paintersville, entertained with an attractive party Monday evening to watch the old year out and to welcome the new year in.

The Devoe home decorations and all appointments were in keeping with the Yuletide season, the red and green in evidence everywhere. Games and music occupied a part of the evening's amusement for the coterie friends of Miss Devoe. Luncheon was served to the guests at a late hour.

The guest list was as follows: Catherine Schauer, Lester Hall, Louise Haworth, Nelson Baker, Ruth Fisher, Loyal Ross, Lorena Stephens, Wayne Woods, Esther Hook, Everett Haines, Gladys Hiney, Alva Stephens, Frances Hershey, Denver Brakefield, Geneva Haworth, Lowell Thompson, Wynona Mason, Geneva Stephens, Richard Thatcher, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Gotherman, Ruthanna and Mary Gotherman and Mr. and Mrs. Harper Devoe.

LYDD GEORGE

By LESLIE P. EICHEL

Especially Written for Central Press and the Gazette

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—New York's sentimental place, after all. Announcement that the Waldorf-Astoria would be abandoned in June and that a fifty-story office building would take its place virtually has drawn a Niagara of emotion. City editors of papers are swamped with tales of this world-famous hotel.

"You see," says an old-timer, who has read the society news for several decades, "there can be no other place like it in America again. It brought from England and continental Europe a social atmosphere the United States previously had not experienced. Except that, in the Waldorf, America went one better."

"Why, away back in 1899, when Rudolph Guggenheim was president of the Borough of Manhattan, he gave a grape arbor dinner. The papers were filled with it. Yes, sir, it cost $250 a plate, plus thousands of dollars to transform the ballroom into a garden, with real nightingales. And out of a big pile 'four and twenty blackbirds flew'."

"Times aren't done that way anymore. Grandmother Remembers This. 'The most famous ball in New York's social history' took place in the ballroom of the Astoria, addition in February, 1897. It emphasized who were the '400' of New York's society. It was the Bradley Martin costume ball. Even if the president had died that day I doubt whether he would have gotten much of a play in New York papers."

"I remember when Prince Henry of Prussia came in February, 1902—yes, nearly 27 years ago. And the town was tickled silly over royalty actually staying in the royal suite, with the imperial flag tilted out from the majestic flagpoles on the Fifth Avenue side."

"Every president since McKinley, including President-elect Hoover, has stayed there. The greatest dinner, in number of persons present, was given to President Coolidge in 1924—2,420 guests and 300 waiters."

"Oh, a fellow can't recall all the guests of various times. Lindbergh, Premier Poincare of France, the Prince of Wales, Lloyd George, Admiral Bevo, and that famous Chinese statesman, Li Hung Chang, the King and Queen of the Belgians, Prince Carol of Roumania, Cardinal Mercier, the Crown Prince of Siam—and many others."

A Mere Twenty Million. "So busy is it for $20,000,000? Too much open space in the old structure for these modern times, eh? Ah, what an age! Fifty-story buildings, food in a hurry, women desiring to be thin, liquor in speak-easies—this is not the specious age."

"William Waldorf Astor, about to go to England to live, was persuaded to tear down his house at Twenty-third Street and Fifth Avenue. He was doubtful. His real estate agent, Abner Bartlett, talked him into it."

"A remarkable hotel for those days, 530 guest rooms—350 with private baths. After the manager they got a fellow from a little old hotel in Philadelphia. George Boldt of the Bellevue. His wife, seeing the plans, made them change it from an eleven-story to a thirteen-story building. And George, far-seeing, fearing that somebody else would build another hotel at Twenty-fourth Street, on the site of the home of John Jacob Astor kept thinking of the Waldorf should steal the thunder. He thereupon built the Waldorf's floor to the same level of the higher plot next door."

"The Astors were warring with each other, but he finally got them together and the Astoria finally was opened at the corner of No. 1897. The Waldorf's took a very nice sixteen-story building."

Quick lunches usually cold, gulped down so the "dinner hour" will not be over before you can do a little playing, is the best way to ruin your stomach, and you suffer from indigestion, heartburn, bloating, nervousness, headaches, and worst of all, you get thin, pale and weak."

If you must eat that way, always keep a package of Pape's Diaphe in handy so you can chew one of the pleasant-tasting tablets after your meals. It keeps the food sweet so your stomach can digest it.

Follow the experience of thousands who again have a young appetite. All druggists recommend and guarantee Pape's Diaphe to relieve indigestion and soothe the stomach in a minute.

DOCTOR APPOINTED

Dr. Harold C. Messenger, this city, was appointed physician at the Greene County Infirmary for the year 1929 by County Commissioners Wednesday. He succeeds Dr. A. D. DeHaven, city health commissioner, who has served in this capacity for the last several years.

FEATURES

As to the first of your letter, I advise you to obey your mother. Wait until you have a daughter of 16 and see how horrified you will be at the idea of her going to dances and staying out later than 11. You will soon be older and then it will be different. About the boy friend. You do not say you quarreled, so the only reason I can think of the he stopped going with you was that he lost interest. If you feel that he still likes you, I do not see his presents back just yet, but wait developments. If he does not come back, you may safely assume that he no longer cares, and return his gifts, if you think he will take them.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A MARVELLOUS MESSENGER—The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me; because the Lord hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek; he hath sent me to bind up the broken-hearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound.—Isa. 61:1.

TURNING OUT EXECUTIVES

Can a college actually turn out a high-grade professional business executive, as it can grind out doctors, lawyers and engineers from its classrooms?

That question—long academic—has been answered. The answer is, "Yes."

The average salary of the class of 1910, first graduating class of the Harvard School of Business Administration, is in excess of $21,000 annually for each member, according to figures obtained by H. J. Forman and published in McClure's.

Forman's investigation discloses a surprising change in the attitude of great enterprises and industries which once regarded the college trained man with an indulgent smile.

At the Harvard school, the first school of business administration in the country, 300 young men were graduated last year—and 80 employers, representing some of the largest corporations in the country, sent representatives to interview most of them long before they received their diplomas, he reports.

Although the school discourages its graduates from starting at high salaries, preferring that they begin at the bottom, many have left school with assured incomes of from $5,000 to $10,000 awaiting them. And of more than 3,000 graduates of the school since its inception only one has proved a complete failure in the business world, Forman finds.

Instead of laughing at the idea of college-trained business men, the biggest industrialists and trade leaders in the country are aiding in their training. For the major factor in their training is not bookish theory but the solving of real problems in manufacturing, merchandising, trading or transportation which have already presented themselves in practical business.

SHOWING GOOD JUDGMENT

The group of congressmen who sent a message to Herbert Hoover asking him whether he believes an agricultural bill ought to be passed this session have received no reply, and it is understood that they will not get one. It is the point of view of the president-elect that this matter, and other matters, such as the cruiser question, are none of his business, since he is not yet in office, but are the business of President Coolidge, who is just as much chief executive today as he has been at any time since he took the oath.

The position taken by Mr. Hoover is refreshingly correct, and it is a lesson in orderliness and propriety which his questioners evidently need, and by which both they and a good many other members of the national legislature may very well profit. It conveys a reminder also that the incoming executive is no novice, and that the "slick" personages who frequently find the commencement of a new administration a harvest time are likely to see pickings as lean after March 4 as they have been under Mr. Coolidge's regime. That will not please them, but it will please the country.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

ESKIMOS AND COLDS

In the regions of the far north Eskimos who do not have contact with the white race and civilization do not have colds. When they come down where the atmosphere is less frigid and into closer association with the folks who think they know what civilization is, they fall victims to the diseases that scourge the rest of us. Diphtheria, scarlet fever and measles are unknown among the Polar Eskimos. Civilization is not an unmitigated blessing. We pay a price for warm houses, our high-powered furnaces, and our soft living.

REAL FREEDOM

The greatest freedom in the world is the freedom to think and say as you really choose. Freedom of the real sort doesn't mean freedom from work or worry or effort or long hours or rough, hard roads. All those things are a part of life and may be a part of life at its best. But to be liberated from physical hardships is often anything but a blessing. But to be so situated that you can not speak for yourself or act for yourself in matters of the mind is to be bound to the most irksome and deadly sort of slavery.

JOHN BROWN

Motoring in West Virginia not long ago the writer found a little tablet in a village on which were these words: "On this site, December 2, 1859, John Brown was executed."

Brown was a fanatic. He was a zealous anti-slavery man without any conception of a practical way to bring an end to slavery. He tried to organize a negro revolution. It failed. Brown was arrested at Harper's Ferry, taken to Charlestown, West Virginia, tried in the old court house which is still used today, and hanged. Brown was an idealist. So was Lincoln, but Lincoln had something that no idealist can afford to be without. Lincoln had common sense.

LAUGHING AT CLAUDE

People laughed at Claude, the French inventor, when he said he could build a power plant that would be operated by power taken from sea water. Now he calmly informs a group of scientists that he will build near Havana a 12,000-kilowatt power plant that will use neither the energy of coal nor falling water. It will extract its energy from the sea and will compete with the cheapest hydro-electric power stations. His invention, he says, is capable of completely transforming living conditions in the tropics.

There is a difference in temperature between ocean water at the surface and at the bottom of 35 or 40 degrees. This difference, he says, is as valuable for power purposes as water falling 300 feet. That means great power.

It is not safe to laugh at anybody in these quick-changing days.

NEWS COMMENT and VIEWS

The Diary

of a

New Yorker

By WALTER WINCHELL

NEW YORK — Described by David Belasco as "without question the greatest theatrical production of the stage," "Mima," starring Lenore Ulric, is proffered at the theatre bearing the illustrious producer's name. No more spectacular or pretentious theatrical production has ever been so magnificently and courageously chanced on the local stage by Mr. Belasco, nor by any of his contemporaries, but "Mima" for the greater part of the proceedings is an empty and uneventful entertainment.

A difficult verdict to render, too, considering that the theatrical journals recorded that Mr. Belasco had expended nearly $300,000 to date on the spectacle. This great cost comes after eight weeks of rehearsals, which included full time wages for the players and much overtime salaries to the large musical crew and the number of stage mechanics necessary to operate the stupendous affair.

Belasco, you suspected, put every ounce of energy and every drop of blood into "Mima," a piece that is only arresting during the first few episodes chiefly because the great mechanical equipment on the stage is an unusual and novel experience for the playgoer. Max Reinhardt, world-famous German producer, perhaps, could not have given "Mima" a more thorough and expert touch, and the magic of Belasco did fail him. The Molnar manuscript, however, proved stale and at times too dull for comfort, in spite of the unanimous opinion of the European critical fraternity which indorsed it with all of the superlatives the language affords. However, Mr. Belasco's adaptation may have been at fault.

Yet, as "The Red Mill," all over the continent it foundered, and one is amazed at the courage displayed by Mr. Belasco in gambling with the European failure on this side, and at the favorable reaction of the foreign reviewers. The spectacle is fashioned out of bitter satire, and reveals, among other not very interesting things, how silks and Satan can corrupt a good man.

Add Rackets

The New York Times building, at Forty-second Street and Broadway, now features a novel electric sign, which circles the edifice. It is described as a "running sign," in which words spell out sentences which furnish hot news before it is printed in the newspaper. It cost the firm $100,000, they say, and is doing much to congest traffic at the world's busiest corner, for great crowds collect or pause to read the headlines. The pickpockets might like to know, at any rate.

However, a new game has come out of it. Groups gather across the street every night and make wagers on the odd or even number of O's that appear in every five lines.

A Wee White House

It's a wee white house, with a cool white porch. And shutters that glitter importance in the sun. It has a wee door, and thru that door,

Walks my life and love when the day is done.

In the narrow gate, up the pebbled walk.

Straight he comes to my eager kiss.

Then we both live over the hours apart.

Tell each other that... tell each other this.

Oh, kings know glory of a different kind.

And lovers in castles don't know much.

But two in a paid for wee white house.

Seldom, if ever, lose the magic touch!

Add Air Slanguage

B. A. Rolfe, who is interested in such things, offers some additions to yesterday's stinky list of aviation slang. For example: Professional birdmen never say aeroplane. To them, all motored aircraft are "ships." To have a ship "on the line" means that it is warmed up and ready for a flight. "Crate" is a derisive term applied to antique planes. Government pursuit planes used in the war are referred to as "jonnies." A smash is called a "crack-up" or a "crash." Propellers are "props." To "go upstairs" means to take a ride; and "the ceiling" ends at the height one may fly without losing sight of the earth.

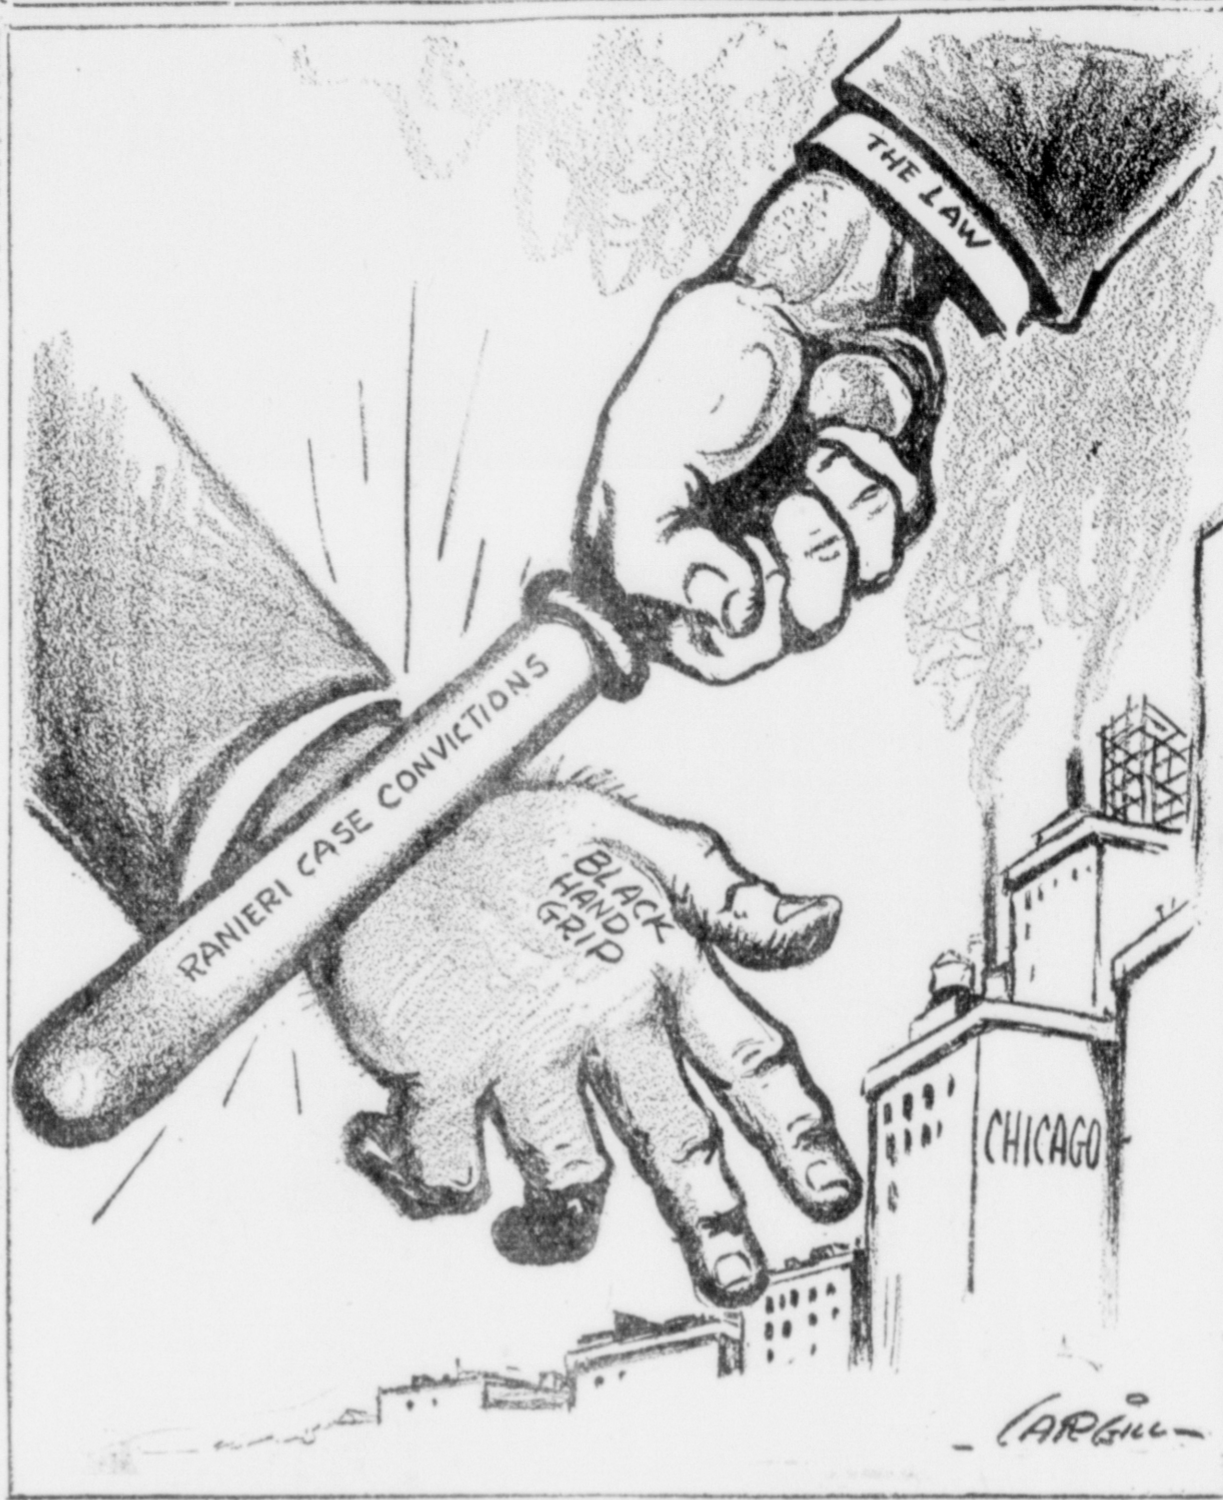

HYGIENE MUSEUM OPENED

The new German Hygiene Museum, the first monumental structure to be erected in Dresden, Germany, since the World War, has just been opened. Germany considers the large block of buildings a masterpiece of practical as well as dignified architecture. The Hygiene Academy occupies two wings, and the remaining part of the building is devoted to the hygiene museum. The famous hall entitled "Man," with the marvel of the "Transparent Man," will form the center of the building. Many new exhibits are being added.

Chess Pies

One cup white sugar, one-half cup butter, cream together and add one cup chopped raisins, ten walnuts, meat, chopped four tablespoons milk, three eggs, unbaked. Bake in pie shells in a moderate oven. Serve with whipped cream.

GOOD WORK!

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—"Peanut politicians! The average American citizen ranks higher morally, and socially than the average congressman."

Strong language!—what? Yet Frederick A. Penning, who uses it, speaks with considerable authority. Fred's congressional acquaintanceship is pretty wide.

Washington's mayoralty is vested in a trinity: two civilian commissioners of the District of Columbia and a military man, all appointed by the president, but required to work in harmony with congress, as the capital's city council.

In harmony? Well, theoretically. In practice, maybe not always. If Fred Penning knows what he is talking about. And he does. Fred was one of Washington's civilian commissioners until a couple of years ago.

For awhile after Fred's appointment there was harmony enough.

Then Fred got into a row with certain congressmen and they started out to lift his scalp. All the misdeeds they tried to pin on poor Frederick would not look well in print. Fred swore by high heaven that he never would resign under fire, but he finally did.

Thereafter Fred held his peace for a long time.

The other day, however, out he came in one of the New York Sunday editions, telling in three columns what kind of an outfit he thinks congress is. "Peanut politicians!" sums it up.

Fred's implied estimate of "the average American citizen" is not particularly flattering, either. True, he does classify the "average citizen" as a better "average congressman," but the strong inference is that he has mentioned about the lowest order of creation he can imagine—and then put the "average congressman" even below that. With all due deference to Fred Penning, as an expert, I believe he errs.

Congress seems to me to be a fair cross section of the country—which is all, in my opinion, that it is reasonable to expect. Able men are scarce on Capitol Hill, certainly—also in private life. Mediocrities predominate in Washington, unquestionably. Most of the rest of us are mediocrities, too.

Where the congressional mediocrity is at a disadvantage—willy-nilly, he has to pose as something extra-super. Failing—of course—he is set down as a bigger pruncheon than he really is. We others simply admit the fact, and it is quite all right.

It is this, in my judgment, that Fred makes his mistake.

The best estimate is that about 25 or 30 men run both houses of congress—the rest doing practically what their leaders, with genuine brains, tell them to do.

This is an allowance of around five per cent of the members of our national legislature above the very ordinary class of merely human folk.

I question if the non-official average is a bit better—or much worse.

If Fred Penning had said, "The average congressman ranks no higher morally, economically and socially (or mentally) than the average American citizen"—why, then I think he could have defended his thesis until the cows came home.

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—Franklin D. Roosevelt is to take the oath of office as governor of New York tomorrow on a family Bible which is more than 257 years old. The first entry on the fly leaf notes the birth in 1691 of Jacobus Roosevelt, Franklin's great great grandfather.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

BEAUTY'S NEW YEAR RESOLUTIONS

Today, the last day of my little talk on resolutions, I am going to confine myself entirely to the subject of what you owe your skin. I suppose comparatively few of you ever stop to realize that you owe a certain measure of good care to your complexion. You do, you know. It isn't either logical or fair to expect your skin to work in your interest without even the encouragement of a little sensible care.

Resolve, all of you, to be meticulously faithful to the nightly cleansing process. One of the deadly sins of omission that 50 per cent of you commit so casually is going to bed at night after your skin is clogged up with rouge, dust, powder and goodness only knows what other forms of impurities. How can you expect clogged pores to function correctly? How can you expect beauty from a dirty face? You can't! That's all there is to it. So please, for the sake of your lovely, neglected skin, spend three minutes every night with a jar of pasteurized cream and a few fine tissues.

In the morning, do that same lovely skin honor of protecting it from its deadly enemies—fatigue and relaxation. Stimulate it with either a good, purifying skin food, with a toning lotion, or with a liquid chemical stimulant. And then resolve to "do right" by that pretty, becoming, natural coloring of yours, and choose your cosmetics with discretion, selecting rouge and powder to blend with the skin and yet subtly emphasize your type.

If you are naturally a little inclined toward the ivory or cream-toned skin, turn resolutely away from light powders. Your rouge may be as vivid as you like. A bright geranium shade is lovely on a slightly dark skin, but blend your powders. You'd be amazed to know that New York is going wild right now over the sun and ochre shades of powder. They are perfectly lovely if wisely used, and since this is my very last resolution, do promise yourself faithfully to be at least as wise about your beauty here as your health and diet laws. It is a duty you owe yourself!

Diet and Health

LIVE FOR THE DAY ONLY:

AND FOR THE DAY'S WORK

Life in Day-Tight Compartments. Happy New Year, Dear Followers: Have you ever read the booklet "A Way of Life," by the great physician, Sir William Osler? It is an address delivered to Yale students in 1913, and because it has been so helpful to me, I want you to get it and read it. Today I will give you some excerpts from it.

Sir William begins with a quotation from Goethe: "What each day needs, that shalt thou ask. Each day will set its proper task."

Then he gives a simple philosophy by which he lived.

"Now the way of life that I teach is a habit to be acquired by long and steady repetition. It is the practice of living for the day only and for the day's work, life in day-tight compartments."

He tells how he was influenced by Carlyle's motto: "Our main business is not to see what lies dimly at a distance, but to do what lies clearly at hand."

"Undress your soul at night," Sir William says, not by self-examination, but by shedding your daily sins, whether of omission or commission as you do your garments, and you will wake a free man with a new life. Do not look back except on rare occasions for stock-taking, for worrying over the errors of the past paralyzes the efforts of today, and the worm regret will canker the very heart of life.

He also advises to shut off the future as tightly as the past, for the "load of tomorrow, added to that of yesterday, carried today, makes the strongest falter."

But in order to successfully use this day-tight compartment philosophy, Sir William points out that each day must be lived earnestly, intently, and to do that we must have health, so the physical and mental habits which slowly destroy, must be subjugated.

Insomnia is most frequently caused by reviewing the day and worrying over tomorrow. When I find these keeping me awake, I think of Osler's advice and say to myself, "I cannot do or undo any more today. This compartment is closed. Tomorrow's begins another fresh day." I find it helps me greatly.

After New Year's day we plan to begin anew. "I'll begin to reduce to ten ranges or even more, to get more outdoor life; I'll break myself of that habit; I'll study a certain amount each day; I'll... After New Year's day..." In a way we live in year-tight compartments. Hereafter let us think of each day as a new year, and live in day-tight compartments.

As Sir William points out, we cannot live fully and intently unless we have health. I am endeavoring to teach you especially the importance of attaining and maintaining normal weight, in order to live a healthy, happy life. Normal weight in most instances means right habits for health in all ways—diet, exercise, work, recreation, rest and mental control.

Are you going to start to reduce tomorrow? All right, I'll help you for a few days. If you can arrange to do so, it is best to start on a three-day or at least a one-day, liquid or semi-liquid diet of not more than 800 calories if you are tall, and 600 if you are short. This really shrinks your stomach so that it does not demand so much, and it clears your tissues of excess waste, and you will lose from five to ten pounds or even more. This inspires you to continue. Make up your calories from the following—any combination and at the times you like: Buttermilk and dates make a pleasant combination, I think. (Buttermilk, 80 C.; the 8-ounce glass; 4 dates, 80 C.; Skim milk, 80 C.; the 8-ounce glass; whole milk, 160 C.; the glass. Oranges, apples, bananas, 1 good-sized, 100 C. each. Orange juice, 100 C. to the 8-ounce glass. Clear vegetable or meat consommé, 8 ounces 25 C.; one ordinary cracker, 25 C.)

Tomorrow: Why Overweight?

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

ILLS THAT CAN'T BE CURED MUST BE CHEERFULLY ENDURED

There are some ills that can't be cured. They must simply be endured. Thinking about them and trying to find a way out is like beating your head against a stone wall, and the only way to save one's reason is to put it resolutely behind you and immerse yourself in other things. Decide that it must be endured, and that in spite of it you will be happy. Every one has something of this to endure—some skeleton in the closet.

"Dear Virginia Lee: My case is different from any I have observed in your interesting column. This is the situation: I am deeply in love with an uncle of mine who is secretly craving for me. He is a brother of my dear father. I would like to know if my marrying him would in any way hinder our future lives, our children, etc. We could be exceedingly happy together, but it is better to suffer at present than to bring misery into our lives later on in life. Don't you think so? As far as I am aware, there is no law that prohibits a marriage of this nature. Nevertheless, I am interested to know if a step of this kind is safe. I can assure you it is pure love on both sides, as it has been so ever since our childhood. I might mention that he is a great deal older than myself, which is the least of my worries. I want to express my thankfulness in advance, as I am quite sure of a consoling reply. Also, do you think a little powder and lip rouge is very harmful to a girl of 17?"

ANXIOUS ADMIRER.

I think it is unlawful for a man to marry his niece, as there is a blood relationship, and the children might suffer, and the niece you may love one day other and enjoy one another's companionship, but not as lovers. A little rouge and lipstick is not harmful, but is usually unnecessary for a young girl of 17.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a junior in high school and am 15 years old. My folks are very old-fashioned. They think that I should only go out one night a week and then to come in at 11 o'clock. I love to go to dances, and Mrs. Lee, it is terrible to go to a dance and keep thinking that you have to be in at a certain time.

"What can I do about it? I met a young man about Christmas whom I liked very much. I went with him steady and about two months ago. Then he stopped coming all of a sudden. When I see him on the street he barely speaks. Then he started going with a girl of 'shady' reputation, and I have heard from various sources that he is doing it just to 'spite' me. Now what can I do to bring him back to me? I have several expensive presents from him, including a ring, wrist watch and vanity case. Shall I return them? Please don't ask me to give him up, because I love him too much for that. Please advise me."

"JUST SIXTEEN."

As to the first of your letter, I advise you to obey your mother. Wait until you have a daughter of 16 and see how horrified you will be at the idea of her going to dances and staying out later than 11. You will soon be older and then it will be different. About the boy friend, you do not say you quarreled, so the only reason I can think of that he stopped going with you is that he lost interest. If you feel that he still likes you, don't send his presents back just yet, but await developments. If he doesn't come back, you may safely assume that he no longer cares, and return his gifts, if you think he will take them.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

BIG BIRD AND LITTLE BOY

The voice sounded suspiciously like that of Peter's old enemy, Mr. Turkey Gobbler, and sure enough, turning around, the boy found himself gazing straight into the eyes of the old fellow himself.

But, gracious! How large the creature was! How red were his wattles! His legs, too—how strong they looked—rather as if when he wanted to the fellow could give a good kick with them. On the whole, Peter did not like the looks of Turkey Gobbler a bit and he backed slowly away from him. Turkey Gobbler noticed what the boy was doing and gave a hoarse chuckle.

"Ha! Ha! Now it is your turn to be afraid, is it? Remembering me around and around the barnyard, are you?"

"And I see you have not forgotten the day when you set Rover on me! You were a great Two-Legs then, not so much smaller than your father, but now it is I who am bigger than you. No wonder you shiver!"

"Go ahead, shiver! Be afraid! It will do you good to be frightened a little; you have scared my wives and me often enough. But there, there! You need not run away! I am not going to gobble you up, although I could if I wanted to."

Peter was provoked at the Turkey's impudence.

"Gobble me up, indeed! Do you suppose that I would stay here and wait for you to seize me? Not much! I would run away, so you could not catch me."

"And do you think for a moment that you could get away from me?" demanded Turkey Gobbler. "Well, then, could I have the finest pair of legs in these parts, I tell you, and I would have you in my beak before you had gone two steps."

"But I don't want to eat you; I do not care for meat, and besides, now that you are in my power and not I in yours, I should like to talk to you a bit. I have never had a chance to before; you have always been so mean to me. But I have heard about your friendships with all the other birds and I have wished you would pay a little attention to me."

"Don't you think you could learn to like me a little, if you tried?"

PLUCKY GRIDDER WHO RAN WRONG WAY DESERVES SYMPATHY OF GRID FANS

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Now that excitement inevitably attendant upon that wrong-way run of Roy Riegels in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day has died away, it is safe to say that the more plucky feeling among football fans everywhere will be one of real sympathy for California's plucky and unlucky captain-elect.

It is to be hoped that the same courage which enabled the husky running center of the Golden Bears to return to the game in the second half and rip the Georgia line to tatters, outplay Captain Peter Riegels and of all-American back and recover a kick for California at a critical moment, will help carry Riegels through the difficult period when memory of his under still is poignant.

Riegels cannot go tearing through every trying situation as he did through the Tech team in that second half, and it is inevitable that he should feel that every time he meets will have that un-

WOMAN ATTEMPTS TO COMMIT SUICIDE— IS SERIOUSLY HURT

A woman identified as Mrs. Barbara Hamburger, 70, 1231 Phillips ave., Dayton, O., is confined in Miami Valley Hospital with serious injuries but will recover, following an alleged attempt to end her life beneath the wheels of a Dayton-Xenia Railway Co. interurban at Belmont Wednesday night.

W. J. Sidwell, merchant policeman of the suburb, told police he was informed by the motorman at Belmont that the woman attempted to throw herself under the car as the train was proceeding toward Dayton shortly before 11 p. m. On its return trip, the motorman declared the same woman darted from the curb in front of the car and he was unable to stop it in time to avoid hitting her.

She was removed to the Dayton hospital, where physicians found she sustained lacerations about the head, fractured ribs and possible injury to the spine. Her condition was reported as fair.

COURT SUSTAINS TWO CONVICTIONS

Convictions of James Blair and Oscar Hargrave in Probate Court on liquor charges more than a year ago were sustained by the Greene county Court of Appeals in decisions announced Wednesday.

Blair was fined $500 and costs by Judge S. C. Wright after being convicted of transporting and delivery of liquor. Hargrave drew a fine of $200 and costs in December, 1927 after being convicted of selling liquor. He was also fined $200 and costs for furnishing liquor, but only the former conviction was appealed.

Both men prosecuted error in common Pleas Court, which upheld their convictions. They then appealed to the appellate court seeking to reverse the judgments of the lower courts.

CONVICTED PAIR TO DIE ON SATURDAY

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 3.—Ada Bonner Le Bonet and her alleged lover, Dr. Henry Dreher, will die on the gallows Saturday afternoon unless some circumstance unforeseen intervenes to save them.

Mrs. Le Bonet and Dr. Dreher were convicted and sentenced to hang by a jury after they were found guilty of murdering the woman's husband on a lonely lake at Morgan City, La., in the summer of 1927. Convicted with them was Jim Beadle, a trapper, who now is serving a life term for the killing.

"I am not sure what part Jim Beadle played in the murder," Governor Huey P. Long said, "but I feel certain that Mrs. Le Bonet and Dr. Dreher were the real murderers."

Mrs. Le Bonet will be the first white woman to go to the gallows in the history of Louisiana.

EAST HIGH QUINTET PLAYS SPRINGFIELD

Revenge for an early season defeat will be sought by East High School's basketball quintet in a return game with the Springfield High team scheduled for Friday night at the East High gymnasium. The contest is called for 8:15 o'clock. A good preliminary has also been arranged. It is announced.

HUSBAND OF FORMER XENIA WOMAN DIES

Word has been received here of the death of Dr. Z. R. Scott, Pittsburgh, Pa., which occurred in Pittsburgh December 29, from pneumonia.

His wife was formerly Miss Mary McClure, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. S. McClure. Her father was pastor of the Second U. P. Church here for a number of years. The McClure family left here in 1912. Dr. and Mrs. Scott's marriage took place in 1919. No children survive. Dr. Scott was a prominent physician in Pittsburgh, and was a specialist in children's diseases, connected with the New Children's Hospital and the Industrial Home for Crippled Children there.

MAYOR'S COURT

FIRST ARREST MADE
To Patrolman Fred Jones goes the honor of making the first arrest of 1929 and to Fred Porter, colored, goes the doubtful honor of being the first person arrested Wednesday afternoon. He is booked on a disorderly charge and will be given a hearing before Mayor John W. Prugh at 9 a. m. Friday following a plea of not guilty entered Thursday morning. The affidavit was filed by Mary Williams, said to be a niece of Porter's wife, following a disturbance at his home.

FINE IMPOSED
Charged with intoxication and disorderly conduct, P. E. Franks, W. Main St., pleaded guilty and was fined the costs, $8.70 and given a suspended sentence of thirty days in the County Jail by Mayor Prugh Thursday. Franks was arrested at 4 a. m. Thursday by Patrolmen Charles Thompson and George Robinson.

Eat Wisely, Exercise Regularly, Keep Away From Crowded Places and Treat All Colds Promptly

Medical authorities now agree that influenza is a germ disease—most commonly spread by breathing in the germs. If the system is in good shape—the membrane of the air passages in a healthy condition—these germs do not usually breed. It is only when the bodily resistance is lowered that the germs do the most harm.

Start Protective Treatment at Once

Right now while influenza is so prevalent every precaution should be taken to protect the air passages. When you feel one of these "Flu Colds" coming on don't wait; start the following treatment at once:

Get a jar of Vicks VapoRub and place some up each nostril, or melt some in a bowl of hot water and inhale its medicated vapors. This helps to keep the air passages in a healthy condition, thus making it difficult for the germs to breed.

PLUCKY GRIDDER WHO RAN WRONG WAY DESERVES SYMPATHY OF GRID FANS

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Now that excitement inevitably attendant upon that wrong-way run of the Golden Bears in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day has died away, it is safe to say that the more plucky the feeling among football fans everywhere will be one of real sympathy for California's plucky and unlucky captain-elect.

It is to be hoped that the same courage which enabled the husky center of the Golden Bears to return to the game in the second half and rip the Georgia line to shreds, outplay Captain Peter and of All-American fame and kick and recover a kick for California at a critical moment, will help carry Riegels through the difficult period when memory of his under still is poignant.

Riegels cannot go tearing through every trying situation as he did through the Tech team in that second half, and it is inevitable that he should feel that eventually he meets will have that unfortunate run of his uppermost in mind.

Riegels, heart-broken, for the loss of such a game looms large in the mind of a college boy, deserves every consideration that can be shown him, rather than half-witted comparisons to Fred Merkle and Heinie Zimmerman, whose famous blunders tell in quite another sphere.

There was once a Northwestern football captain who tackled one of his own men, and instances of football players carrying on for a number of plays entirely unconscious of their actions but driven by the will to win are numerous in gridiron history.

After all, that is what Riegels was doing. He had the will to win, and he was off on bruised legs, with labored, aching lungs, to run as fast and as far as he could and score for California.

That he ran in the wrong direction has nothing to do with his intentions or his courage. It emphasizes them, for the battering he had received undoubtedly had temporarily cost him a clear conception of just what he was doing.

It is worth hoping that next fall's California eleven, under his leadership, will have a season so successful that Captain Roy Riegels' name will stand for football fame and not for that one mishap of New Year's Day.

WOMAN ATTEMPTS TO COMMIT SUICIDE— IS SERIOUSLY HURT

A woman identified as Mrs. Barbara Hamburger, 70, 1231 Phillips st., Dayton, O., is confined in Miami Valley Hospital with serious injuries but will recover, following an alleged attempt to end her life beneath the wheels of a Dayton-Xenia Railway Co. interurban car at Belmont Wednesday night.

W. J. Sidwell, merchant policeman of the suburb, told police he was informed by the motorman that the woman attempted to throw herself under the car as the action was proceeding toward Dayton shortly before 11 p. m. On his return trip, the motorman declared the same woman darted from the curb in front of the car and he was unable to stop it in time to avoid hitting her.

She was removed to the Dayton hospital, where physicians found she sustained lacerations about the head, fractured ribs and possible injury to the spine. Her condition was reported as fair.

COURT SUSTAINS TWO CONVICTIONS

Convictions of James Blair and Oscar Hargrave in Probate Court on liquor charges more than a year ago were sustained by the Greene county Court of Appeals in decisions announced Wednesday.

Blair was fined $800 and costs. Judge S. G. Wright after being convicted of transporting and delivery of liquor. Hargrave drew a fine of $200 and costs in December, 1927 after being convicted of selling liquor. He was also fined $200 and costs for furnishing liquor, but only the former conviction was appealed.

The appeal presented error in common Pleas Court, which upheld their convictions. They then appealed to the appellate court seeking to reverse the judgments of the lower courts.

CONVICTED PAIR TO DIE ON SATURDAY

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 3.—Ada Bonner Le Bouef and her alleged lover, Dr. Henry Dreher, will die on the gallows Saturday afternoon unless some circumstance unforeseen intervenes to save them.

Mrs. Le Bouef and Dr. Dreher were convicted and sentenced to hang by a jury after they were found guilty of murdering the woman's husband on a lonely lake at Morgan City, La., in the summer of 1927. Convicted with "Sam" was Jim Beadle, a transporter, who now is serving a life term for the killing.

"I am not sure what part Jim Beadle played in the murder," Governor Huey P. Long said, "but I feel certain that Mrs. Le Bouef and Dr. Dreher were the real murderers."

Mrs. Le Bouef will be the first white woman to go to the gallows in the history of Louisiana.

EAST HIGH QUINTET PLAYS SPRINGFIELD

Revenge for an early season defeat will be sought by East High School's basketball quintet in a return game with the Springfield Hi Y team scheduled for Friday night at the East High gymnasium. The contest is called for 8:15 o'clock. A good preliminary has also been arranged. It is announced.

Three weeks ago East High's scrappy team was defeated by Springfield Hi Y 26 to 18 at Springfield, but the game was nevertheless hard fought all the way despite the apparently decisive score.

HUSBAND OF FORMER XENIA WOMAN DIES

Word has been received here of the death of Dr. R. Z. Scott, Pittsburgh, Pa., which occurred in Pittsburgh December 29, from pneumonia.

His wife was formerly Miss Mary McClure, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. S. McClure. Her father was pastor of the Second U. P. Church here for a number of years. The McClure family left here in 1912. Dr. and Mrs. Scott's marriage took place in 1919. No children survive.

Dr. Scott was a prominent physician in Pittsburgh, and was a specialist in children's diseases, connected with the New Children's Hospital and the Industrial Home for Crippled Children there.

MAYOR'S COURT

FIRST ARREST MADE

To Patrolman Fred Jones goes the honor of making the first arrest of 1929 and to Fred Porter, colored, goes the doubtful honor of being the first person arrested. Porter, taken into custody Wednesday afternoon, is booked on a disorderly charge and will be given a hearing before Mayor John W. Prugh at 9 a. m. Friday following a plea of not guilty entered Thursday morning. The affidavit was filed by Mary Williams, said to be a niece of Porter's wife, following a disturbance at his home.

FINE IMPOSED

Charged with intoxication and disorderly conduct, P. E. Franks, W. Main st., pleaded guilty and was fined the costs, $8.70 and given a suspended sentence of thirty days in the County Jail by Mayor Prugh Thursday. Franks was arrested at 4 a. m. Thursday by Patrolmen Charles Thompson and George Robinson.

Help Check Influenza!

Local People Urged to Help Prevent Epidemic Spreading

Eat Wisely, Exercise Regularly, Keep Away From Crowded Places and Treat All Colds Promptly

Medical authorities now agree that influenza is a germ disease—most commonly spread by breathing in the germs. If the system is in good shape—the membrane of the air passages in a healthy condition—these germs do not usually breed. It is only when the bodily resistance is lowered that the germs do the most harm.

Start Protective Treatment at Once

Right now while influenza is so prevalent every precaution should be taken to protect the air passages. When you feel one of these "Flu Colds" coming on don't wait; start the following treatment at once:

Get a jar of Vicks VapoRub and place some up each nostril, or melt some in a bowl of hot water and inhale its medicated vapors. This helps to keep the air passages in a healthy condition, thus making it difficult for the germs to breed.

MISS OLIVE E. KYLE SUCCUMBS TO BRIEF ILLNESS WEDNESDAY

Miss Olive E. Kyle, widely known Xenia woman, died at Espey Hospital Wednesday night at 10:15 o'clock, from pneumonia.

Miss Kyle contracted a cold Sunday but was able to teach her Sunday School Class at the Presbyterian Church. Her condition became worse Monday and she was removed to the hospital. Pneumonia developed, Wednesday and a heart complication hastened her death.

Miss Stella B. Clark, with whom Miss Kyle had resided for twenty-three years, has been a patient at Espey Hospital, with heart trouble for the past four weeks. Her condition is critical and she is unaware of Miss Kyle's death.

Miss Kyle was recently retired by the Dayton Power and Light Co., where she was employed nineteen years. Before becoming connected with that company she was a telephone operator in Xenia a number of years.

The nearest relatives surviving are three cousins, Mrs. Louise Henderson, Los Angeles, Cal., Mrs. Olive Marland, Columbus, O., and William Anderson, Dayton.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 1:30 p. m. at the Presbyterian Church with burial in Woodland Cemetery. Friends may call at the Neel Funeral parlors anytime Friday afternoon.

Among the great list of local residents and people in nearby towns to endorse Konjola is Mrs. Emma Engle, Route No. 2, Spring Valley, (near Xenia) who gave the following statement:

"This medicine has certainly made a wonderful change over my entire system and since it restored the health I tried so long and hard to obtain, I think it only right that I endorse it to others," said Mrs. Engle.

"This past Spring I was afflicted with bronchitis and influenza and these ailments left me in an entirely rundown and weakened condition. My nerves could not hold up under the strain and became so upset that I was bothered constantly with them. All during the day I was subject to such nauseating dizzy spells that when they passed off, I always suffered from a splitting headache and I would have to lie down for hours in order to get relief. I was unable to sleep well at night because of terrible night sweats. Of course, these were very weakening and my strength rapidly left me. I did not have any energy and my appetite was less than nothing. The food that I did eat sometimes refused to remain in my stomach. I had lost fourteen pounds and was very downhearted.

"Konjola has received so many sincere recommendations from local residents that I made further inquiries about this medicine and found that in the majority of cases, it does all that is claimed for it. This gave me confidence and so I started on the treatment. It is a blessing that I did because this medicine proved a Godsend to me. It has restored my health in every way and I will always endorse it to others. First of all Konjola quieted my nerves so that they stopped bothering me and now I can go to bed and sleep through the entire night. I have gained so much in strength and weight that I hardly know I am the same person. Those awful dizzy spells never come over me and consequently I don't have a single headache. Those awful night sweats are things of the past and I feel sure the relief is permanent. My stomach does not cause me any suffering and I can eat whatever I want without any aftereffect. Food digests perfectly and I never worry about keeping it on my stomach. It is a pleasure to endorse such a medicine and I think there would be a lot of suffering in this world if people in ill health would give Konjola a trial."

He gave three addresses Thursday, appearing at Central High School at 2 p. m., and at the Presbyterian Church at 3 and 7:30. The Girls Octette of the O. S. and S. O. Home will sing several numbers Thursday night and Dr. Crowe will speak on "Deliverance, the Major Theme of Faith."

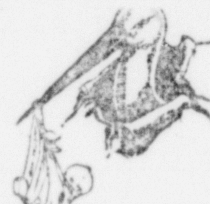

Growing interest in Dr. Crowe and his messages, was indicated by increased attendance Wednesday. He held the undivided attention of his audience with his depiction of the contrasting characters of King Herod and John the Baptist.

"The testimony of John the Baptist was honest, direct and effective. Herod's great sin was sinning against the Light. He well knew that the stern words of the Baptist were true but he was too cowardly and wicked at heart to act upon them as he knew he ought," the speaker said.

Friday morning at 10 o'clock, Dr. Crowe will speak in the high school auditorium at the O. S. and S. O. Home. He will also speak at the Presbyterian Church on the subject, "In the Interpreter's House." Sunday School teachers and church workers are urged to attend this service.

RECORDER OFFICE TO COMPLY WITH LAW

Under a ruling delivered by Attorney General Edward C. Turner last December 19, County Recorder B. F. Thomas announced Wednesday that the recorder's office will hereafter charge a fee of six cents for each party to the assignment of a chattel mortgage in addition to the regular charge for indexing it.

Recorder Thomas received instructions from the Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices directing that the opinion be followed in order that the charge be made uniform in all county recorder's offices throughout the state.

The ruling follows:

1.—Where an assignment of a chattel mortgage is made after the original mortgage has been filed, it is the duty of the county recorder to charge a fee of six cents for each party to the assignment for indexing the mortgage.

2.—Where a chattel mortgage is presented with an assignment already made, it is the duty of the county recorder to charge the amount provided for the filing of the original mortgage and in addition, six cents for each party to the assignment.

MISS OLIVE E. KYLE SUCCUMBS TO BRIEF ILLNESS WEDNESDAY

Miss Olive E. Kyle, widely known Xenia woman, died at Espey Hospital Wednesday night at 10:15 o'clock, from pneumonia.

Miss Kyle contracted a cold Sunday but was able to teach her Sunday School Class at the Presbyterian Church. Her condition became worse Monday and she was removed to the hospital. Pneumonia developed, Wednesday and a heart complication hastened her death.

Miss Stella B. Clark, with whom Miss Kyle had resided for twenty-three years, has been a patient at Espey Hospital, with heart trouble for the past four weeks. Her condition is critical and she is unaware of Miss Kyle's death.

Miss Kyle was recently retired by the Dayton Power and Light Co., where she was employed nineteen years. Before becoming connected with that company she was a telephone operator in Xenia a number of years.

The nearest relatives surviving are three cousins, Mrs. Louise Henderson, Los Angeles, Cal., Mrs. Olive Marland, Columbus, O., and William Anderson, Dayton.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 1:30 p. m. at the Presbyterian Church with burial in Woodland Cemetery. Friends may call at the Need Funeral parlors anytime Friday afternoon.

Pioneer Greene County Pictured In "Ohio Railroad Guide" Given Xenia

Reviving memories of the Xenia of more than three-quarters of a century ago, is a word picture of the city as it existed in 1854, contained in a photographic reproduction of the original illustrated "Ohio Railroad Guide."

The guide depicts various localities and scenes along the Cincinnati, Columbus, Erie and Cleveland Railroad, published at a time when this method of transportation was novel and when only 500 or 600 miles of railroad were in existence in Ohio.

The book was presented by M. F. Stark, Dayton, former Xenian, to City Auditor T. H. Zell during the Home-Coming celebration here in August when Zell was acting as chairman of the affair. The Stark family is mentioned in the Xenia description as operating the Pennsylvania station restaurant at that time.

Following is the description of Xenia and other nearby Greene County towns as contained in the railroad guide:

"Xenia is sixty-four miles from Cincinnati, and fifty-four miles from Columbus. It is the county seat of Greene County, and one of the best inland towns of the West. But before we discuss the town, let us discuss another, and quite a practical question. At least you will think so. Are you hungry? Is this supper time? If so, let me tell you. Over all the railway depots in the United States, this is one of the best for a meal. It is clean, roomy, and the meals are well got by my friend Stark, and charged for no more, than they ought to be.

"In all the New York and Pennsylvania railways, there is not a place better than this to get a nice supper. So if you are hungry and will be satisfied with good things, and don't demand oysters and turbot out of season, now is your chance. Sit down and be comforted.

"Now, if you have done supper, we will take a look at Xenia. Xenia, where did they get that name? I cannot tell. I have heard something of its origin, but really cannot trace it to any known thing. Well, Xenia contains 4,200 inhabitants, just twice what it did in 1850, and 1,200 more than it did in 1860. This shows a rapid growth, and is due almost entirely to the railways which here intersect.

"The Little Miami, on which we now are, passes on north to join the Mad River road, at Springfield; while on the east it is connected with Columbus, by the Xenia and Columbus, on which we shall now proceed.

"Xenia Twp. is the largest township in Ohio, and contains about 8,500 inhabitants. It was settled chiefly by the Seceders, as they were called, the Covenanters and the Associate Reformed Church, all of whom are branches of the same sect, the old Scotch Covenanters. In the town of Xenia, there are now twelve churches, of which one is Seceder, one Covenanter, two Associate Reformed, two Methodist, one Presbyterian, one Baptist, one German Lutheran, one Roman Catholic and two African. This is more than a church to each 400 people. So you see this is a church-going people.

"In the county there are sixty-five churches, or one to each 300 persons, a very large proportion. In general, Greene County is settled by a sober, industrious, orderly, and intelligent people. You would readily see this from the very look of the farms, if you could see them. Generally, however, our railways do not pass through the most cultivated sections.

"But, to return to Xenia: we shall not see it nearer than at the depot. But, even here, the town shows a pleasant aspect, bright and thriving. The little stream that separates us from town is Shawnee, which runs as clear and bright as if it were leaping over the sands and rocks of New England. Its name is the only thing in this broad land, except those strange old mounds, which reminds us of the ancient inhabitants. Shawnee, dost thou still remember the Shawnee, the wild warrior of the forest, who once roamed upon thy banks, and hunted in thy woods, and frolicked in the loud joy of a freeman?

"Again we start, and soon we shall leave thee, fair Xenia, behind, and bid farewell to all thy charms, thy spires, thy woods and waters. Of none can it be more truly said, than of thee—

—Loveliest village of the plain, Where health and plenty cheer the laboring swain.

Where smiling Spring its earliest visit pays, And parting Summer's lingering bloom delays.

"How often have I paused on every charm,

The shelter'd cot, the cultivated farm,

The never-falling brook, the busy mill,

The decent church that tops the neighboring hill."

"We pass near, but shall not see—Tawawa Springs, a fashionable summer resort for the citizens of Cincinnati (now Wilberforce). This is a new place, being established only within four or five years. Originally, it was a beautiful piece of wood, or rolling land, in the midst of which was a deep ravine. In that ravine arose three springs; one was pure natural water; one was lime-water, and one was iron and sulphur.

"The beauty of the situation, with the presence of the springs, gave to Mr. E. F. Drake, who first started the enterprise, the idea of making it a watering place.

"This has been accomplished, and Tawawa is now both a beautiful and a fashionable place. A large, elegant and most comfortable hotel has been erected, in front of which is a lawn shaded by forest trees. On each side are rows of cottages, most of them erected by gentlemen for their own families.

"The roads around Xenia are very good and pleasant for riding; the country remarkably healthy; the place is accessible, at the Xenia railway station, from every part of the United States. In thirty hours you can be in New York or Philadelphia, from Tawawa Springs. In two hours you can be in Cincinnati. I have been at most of the watering places in this country, and I assure you, that for comfort with seclusion, and convenience with pleasure there is not another place in the United States, more comfortable, convenient and pleasant than this. A fine view of Xenia, and the depot accompanies this.

"Cedarville Station, seventy-two miles from Cincinnati, and forty-five from Columbus. There occurs here a remarkable phenomenon for this country—the presence of cedar trees—and hence the name of the village—Cedarville. The village is seen from the left, through a clump of trees.

"It is situated at the Falls of Massie's Creek, a stream quite edible in Indian wars, and Indian adventures. The falls at Massie's Creek was quite a romantic spot, the waters plunging over rocky precipices, and overhung by darkly green cedars. But, alas, the cedars are cut away, the red Indian has disappeared; there is no more danger; and quiet people plant corn and tend sheep. Wild wars and fearful romance have disappeared forever. Not even the spirit-rappers can recall them.

"Spring Valley, fifty-seven miles from Cincinnati, and seven miles from Xenia, is a pleasant village, small, but neat. There is a woolen factory, a tavern, several shops, and in the neighborhood, a good many mills and factories.

"The turnpike from Cincinnati to Xenia also passes here. The land is rich, the Miami River near by; so that on the whole, this position is a very good one, for those who wish to live in the country, and yet be in a village. It is called Spring Valley, from the very peculiar nature of the hills, and soil around.

"The hills which surround the place are full of springs, which gush out, almost as large as rivulets. For two or three miles, they are almost innumerable. You will see them on the slopes, as we pass up the little valley of Gladly. Gladly is only seven miles in length, rising in some large springs, near Xenia.

"In that seven miles, however, it turns the wheels of some seven or eight mills and factories. It is the busiest little water course you ever saw.

"When you get half-way through this valley, about three miles from Xenia, in the woods on the left, is the spot where Daniel Boone made his escape from the Indians. He had been taken prisoner by the Indians, and carried to Old Chillicothe, now called 'Old Town,' which is about six miles beyond this place, on the Miami."

THE OLD HOME TOWN

TRUCK AND BUS HIT; 32 HURT

Icy Pavement Is Blamed For Crash

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 3.—Thirty-two persons were injured, seven more or less seriously, when a truck sideswiped a Greyhound bus en route from Cincinnati to Detroit, near Bowling Green, O., last night.

The crash apparently occurred when the truck skidded on the icy pavement. Those seriously injured were brought to Williams sanitarium here, they included:

A. E. Kuhr, Toledo; A. T. McNeil, Watertown, Tenn.; William Crabb, Springfield; Clinton Taber, Detroit; J. J. Rice, Lima; Thomas M. Cox, Detroit; Chauncey White, colored, Detroit.

Among those less seriously hurt were:

A. Riesenach, Lima; Mr. and Mrs. James Curry, Detroit; Miss Mary Ford, Detroit; Harry Helwig of Cincinnati was driving the bus. The truck was driven by Frank Harper of the Young Brothers Trucking Company, Lima.

The bus turned over and crashed into a ditch. Harper was taken into custody by Sheriff R. F. Witte pending investigation.

Held for Ransom

Fears that she is in shadow of death were expressed on behalf of pretty Dorothy Kiesow, 14, of No. 645 Melrose avenue, New York City, following receipt of a note demanding a sum of money as ransom for her safe return. The child has been missing since Dec. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Burgett returned from a visit in Detroit last Wednesday.

The children and grandchildren of Mr. William Randall spent Christmas day at Mr. Randall's home here.

Mrs. E. M. DeHaven of Osborn, was at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. L. Darners a couple of days last week, assisting in the care of her grandson, who was quite ill.

Mrs. Roy Burgett suffered an attack of throat trouble a few days last of the week.

The school will open sessions here Monday, January 7.

Rev. E. O. DeHaven of Maryville, Tenn., called at the home of his sister, Mrs. Darners, Friday.

John D. Anderson is quite sure that the little boy who played Santa at the school program forgot part of his costume, and was just dressed like his papa. For John insists that Santa wears a red overcoat and white mittens. We will just leave John to his merry Christmas thoughts and start our new year with good resolutions and wish all a prosperous 1929.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Influenza, Grippe and Pneumonia usually start with a cold. The moment you get those warning aches rub on good old Musterole.

Musterole relieves the congestion and stimulates circulation. It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister. First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief. Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole. Jars & Tubes

Pioneer Greene County Pictured In "Ohio Railroad Guide" Given Xenia

Reviving memories of the Xenia of more than three-quarters of a century ago, is a word picture of the city as it existed in 1854, contained in a photographic reproduction of the original illustrated "Ohio Railroad Guide".

The guide depicts various localities and scenes along the Cincinnati, Columbus, Erie and Cleveland Railroad, published at a time when this method of transportation was novel and when only 500 or 600 miles of railroad were in existence in Ohio.

The book was presented by M. F. Stark, Dayton, former Xenian, to City Auditor T. H. Zell during the Home-Coming celebration here in August when Zell was acting as chairman of the affair. The Stark family is mentioned in the Xenia description as operating the Pennsylvania station restaurant at that time.

Following is the description of Xenia and other nearby Greene County towns as contained in the railroad guide:

"Xenia is sixty-four miles from Cincinnati, and fifty-four miles from Columbus. It is the county seat of Greene County, and one of the best inland towns of the West. But better we discuss the town, let us discuss another, and quite a practical question. At least you will think so. Are you hungry? Is this supper time? If so, let me tell you. BANK TELLER HELD IN SHORTAGE CASE

PAINESVILLE O., Jan. 3.—Charles S. Butler, 42, teller in the Painesville branch of the Cleveland Trust Company was questioned today in connection with a $10,000 shortage which bank officials said they found in his accounts.

Butler was taken into custody last night at the request of Russell V. Blecker, head of the Cleveland branch of the Pinkerton Detective agency, who said irregularities in Butler's accounts had been discovered.

When Blecker confronted Butler he said Butler admitted he had spent some of the bank's money for "liquor."

Butler has been employed by the trust company for six years. He is married.

TRUCK AND BUS HIT; 32 HURT

TOLEDO, O. Jan. 3.—Thirty-two persons were injured, seven more or less seriously, when a truck sideswiped a Greyhound bus en route from Cincinnati to Detroit, near Bowling Green, O., last night.

The crash apparently occurred when the truck skidded on the icy pavement. Those seriously injured were brought to Williams sanitarium here. They included:

A. E. Kuhn, Toledo; A. T. McNeel, Watertown, Tenn.; William Crabb, Springfield; Clinton Taber, Detroit; J. J. Rice, Lima; Thomas M. Cox, Detroit; Chauncey White, colored, Detroit.

Among those less seriously hurt were:

A. Riesenach, Lima; Mr. and Mrs. James Curry, Detroit; Miss Marjory Ford, Detroit.

Harry Helwig of Cincinnati was driving the bus. The truck was driven by Frank Harper of the Young Brothers Trucking Company, Lima.

The bus turned over and crashed into a ditch.

Harper was taken into custody by Sheriff R. F. Witte pending investigation.

GOES STATION

Mrs. Abner Nicholson and son, Tom, of New Vienna, spent several days last week at the home of Mrs. William Anderson.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Burgett returned from a visit in Detroit last Wednesday.

The children and grandchildren of Mr. William Randall spent Christmas day at Mr. Randall's home here.

Mrs. E. M. DeHaven of Osborn, was at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. L. Darners a couple of days last week, assisting in the care of her grandson, who was quite ill.

Mrs. Roy Burgett suffered an attack of throat trouble a few days the last of the week.

The school will open sessions here Monday, January 7.

Rev. E. O. DeHaven of Marysville, Tenn., called at the home of his sister, Mrs. Darners, Friday.

John D. Anderson is quite sure that the little boy who played Santa at the school program forgot part of his costume, and was just dressed like his papa. For John insists that Santa wears a red overcoat and white mittens. We will just leave John to his merry Christmas thoughts and start our new year with good resolutions and wish all a prosperous 365 days.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

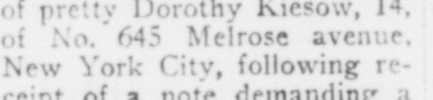

Influenza, Grippe and Pneumonia usually start with a cold. The moment you get those warning aches rub on good old Musterole.

Musterole relieves the congestion and stimulates circulation. It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief. Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

The World And All

BY CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

THE RISKS OF SOVEREIGNTY

Whoever takes the job of king or queen, emperor or empress, accepts upon himself for royalty and its perils. But the French had had enough of kings and queens and empresses, and forgot all about her.

She lived through the World War, saw the earth dotted with the habitations of rulers exiled as tragically as she, and died at the age of 94.

I see kings and queens through the eyes of an American, nourished upon hatred for royalty and its pretences. But of course there is another side. Every empress has a case to present to the bar of public opinion. Empress Eugenie now presents hers, after her death, through a book, published by Harpers under the title, "The Tragic Empress." Maurice Paleologue does the writing, and he makes the story fairly interesting.

The Empress Eugenie, wife of Napoleon III of France, lived one of the most interesting and tragic of royal lives. She was born in 1826 and died in 1920. She was the daughter of a Spanish count and a Scotch girl whose maiden name had been Kirkpatrick. Napoleon III, who was doing his best to make the republican French like imperial rule, married her when she was 27 years old.

Empress Eugenie (you pronounce it Youzhay-nee) lived to see her country beaten by the Germans. She lived to flee before the French revolutionists, out the side door of her palace, into a cab, and away to England. She lived in exile; her husband died when she was 47; her son was killed, fighting blacks in Africa for the English king, when she was 53. The ex-empress lived on, always hoping Byrd, Bowling, brought up in a small town was trying to adapt himself to her fast-moving, magnetic, young husband, Larry, but she soon discovered that Jack Duncan, his business associate, was plunging him into debt instead of making him rich as he promised. Larry's friends were lively and spendthrift, and Larry, too, was spending his entire income, even the large sums he was continually borrowing from Mr. Hamilton.

Pat, Byrd's young sister who lived with them in their small, expensive apartment, intoxicated with city life, started a pace of her own. Finally Byrd bought a house without Larry's knowledge and paid $1,000 down on it, out of the last loan. Tiny and Fred Oberman admired her courage and approved the step she had taken.

Larry, who had been out of town on business, came home for the week end. Byrd prepared a delicious supper, but Larry, detained by a poker game at the office, arrived long after she had gone to bed.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIX

The September sun was busily painting the walls of the bedroom with running gold when Byrd awoke with the realization that it must be very late.

She looked quickly at the other bed where Larry was still sleeping before the events of the evening became clear in her mind. She remembered now. Everything!

The bright sun that poured into her eyes couldn't palliate the situation. She couldn't, and she wouldn't, go on living like this, her mind continually lacerated by Larry's acts, her soul constantly torn by his selfish brutalities.

Never again would she make excuses for Larry. Never again would she tolerate the things that he did. Never again!

Thank goodness, she could face the truth at last!

Larry would continue to spend his income faster than he earned it.

Yet pursue his idea of a good time to the accompaniment of a thinking glass, jazz and gay parties.

He'd shirk every bit of responsibility and dodge every important issue.

He'd be his own sweetly temperamental self until he was ruined.

Certainly it was time for her to take a hand in the situation.

Her tired brain whirled like a dynamo until she felt that at last she had a plan as far-reaching as the "Treaty of Versailles." The peace of the world wasn't as important as the peace in the Browning home.

Byrd hurried into the living room to find Pat gone.

She snatched a cup of coffee and then rushed to the garage and with a tiny feeling of misgiving, she drove the car out of the garage. Why should she always leave the car for Larry?

Byrd went directly to Progress Polk's office and paid a second thousand on the house. That second payment, she felt, clinched the bargain.

The house was theirs!

Feeling like the rock of Gibraltar, she hurried back to the apartment to face Larry. A scared little smile evaporated almost instantly from her white face as she realized that he was going to have the shock of his life.

The pungent aroma of strong coffee was in the air as she walked into the apartment. Larry was in the kitchen, moving around awkwardly, getting his breakfast. He caught Byrd in his arms, and she had a chance to say a word.

She pushed him away with a frown and a gesture, which said plainly that she would never again have a thing to do with him! But Larry held her all the more closely.

"It won't do you a bit of good," she said, as she held herself rigid in his arms.

"Byrdkins, darling, I'm frightfully sorry about last night," Larry leaned his cheek against hers, and there was contrition in every syllable.

Byrd was still like a stone in his arms.

"While you're eating your breakfast, we can discuss things," she said evenly.

His arms dropped to his side with a sudden hopeless gesture.

Byrd quickly recovered from the sensation that prickled through her heart. Larry could take things so pathetically!

She coddled the eggs and buttered the toast, as she had done for him for six months, but her small features were chiselled out of white, cold marble.

"It won't do you a bit of good."

Then she told Larry that she had decided they couldn't live together any longer. She couldn't endure their quarrels. She couldn't endure days of luxury, followed by days of poverty. She couldn't endure the worry of unpaid bills, of constant loans, of uncertain and questionable business ventures.

She couldn't endure gin parties and India! She couldn't endure married life—any of it!

Then it was that Byrd got the shock of her life. For, instead of bridling with fury under the insults that she had poured over his head, Larry's face sobered instantly and whitened a little. He looked down at the fork which he held in his hand, making strange markings on the tablecloth.

Something seemed to catch in his throat.

"I know I'm no good," he said, finally, after a long silence. "and I don't blame you for quitting me. I'm sorry you married me, for you're too sweet and lovely for the likes of me. I'm a foreflusher, and a darned lazy one, at that. I don't blame you for leaving me. I'm a hopeless failure."

Byrd was staggered. She went white to the lips. She had never dared say one word in criticism of Larry without bringing a storm of denial and protest.

"You're not a failure!" Larry retorted, with more spirit than she was aware of. "You've got more brains, charm and personality than any man I know. But you won't look at things like a sane, normal, balanced man. You're still a little boy, trying to get more than his share of fun out of life."

"You've been a brick," continued Larry, in a tone of abject self-reproach. "Let's try it again. I'll try to live the way that will make you happiest. Honest I will!"

"I don't want promises," said Byrd, deciding not to surrender too easily. "You've broken so many."

"Jack told me about the house," said Larry. "I understand it's a great bargain, and I'm glad you had the chance to buy it." Larry looked up at Byrd with a tiny, wistful smile in his dark eyes. "Won't you give me credit for wanting a home, too?"

"And you aren't cross with me for buying it?" asked Byrd, haltingly.

Larry crossed the room quickly and lifted Byrd out of the chair at the end of the table.

"I'm proud of you for being smart enough to take it," he said, smiling into her eyes and kissing her lips.

Byrd felt as if she were about to collapse.

"It's the duckiest house you ever saw, Larry," she said, finally, as he released her and finished his breakfast. Her eyes were shining.

They sat close together on the davenport and discussed the house.

Byrd told Larry about her visit to Jacksonville and about the loan.

"Apply the whole of it on the house," he said, generously.

"Just part of it," smiled Byrd. "I want you to buy out Jack's interest

The World And All
BY CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

THE RISKS OF SOVEREIGNTY
Whoever takes the job of king or queen, emperor or empress, accepts some little risk. It's true that the rest of us accept risks when we accept a job or a husband or a wife or an honorary position. But the ruler is a highly specialized craftsman, and there is no job open to him in all the world, once he loses his throne. And he can hardly hope to be happy chopping down trees or contemplating the world from a quiet island or country estate, after kinging it for several years.

Always, there have been deposed emperors, kings and sundry royalty living on their relatives or on the bounty of republican governments, scattered about the world. There are more royal and noble leaders "at liberty," as the actor-folk say, now than ever before.

The Empress Eugenie, wife of Napoleon III of France, lived one of the most interesting and tragic of royal lives. She was born in 1826 and died in 1920. She was the daughter of a Spanish count and a Scotch girl whose maiden name had been Kirkpatrick. Napoleon III, who was doing his best to make the republican French like imperial rule, married her when she was 27 years old.

Empress Eugenie (you pronounce it You-zhay-ne) lived to see her country beaten by the Germans. She lived to flee before the French revolutionists, out the side door of her palace, into a cab, and away to England. She lived in exile, her husband died when she was 47; her son was killed, fighting blacks in Africa for the English king, when she was 53. The ex-empress lived on, always hoping that she would get back her throne in France. But the French had had enough of kings and queens and empresses, and forgot all about her.

She lived through the World War saw the earth dotted with the habitations of rulers exiled as tragically as she, and died at the age of 94.

I see kings and queens through the eyes of an American, nourished upon hatred for royalty and its pretences. But of course there is another side. Every empress has a case to present to the bar of public opinion. Empress Eugenie now presents hers, after her death, through a book, published by Harpers under the title, "The Tragic Empress." Maurice Paleologue does the writing, and he makes the story fairly interesting.

BRINGING UP FATHER

LET'S LIVE! By MILDRED LAMB

"It won't do you a bit of good."

READ THIS FIRST:
Byrd Browning, brought up in a small town, was trying to adapt herself to her fast-moving, magnetic, young husband, Larry, but she soon discovered that Jack Duncan, his business associate, was plunging him into debt instead of making him rich as he promised. Larry's friends were lively and spendthrift, and Larry, too, was spending his entire income, even the large sums he was continually borrowing from Mr. Hamilton, Byrd's father, on useless extravagance and on India Campbell, a former sweetheart of Larry's, who "borrowed" from everybody.

Pat, Byrd's young sister who lived with them in their small, expensive apartment, intoxicated with city life, started a pace of her own. Finally Byrd bought a house without Larry's knowledge and paid $1,000 down on it, out of the last loan. Tiny and Fred Oberman admired her courage and approved the step she had taken.

Larry, who had been out of town on business, came home for the week end. Byrd prepared a delicious supper, but Larry, detained by a poker game at the office, arrived long after she had gone to bed.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIX
The September sun was busily painting the walls of the bedroom with running gold when Byrd awoke with the realization that it must be very late.

She looked quickly at the other bed where Larry was still sleeping before the events of the evening became clear in her mind. She remembered now. Everything!

The bright sun that poured into her eyes couldn't palliate the situation. She couldn't, and she wouldn't, go on living like this, her mind continually lacerated by Larry's acts, her soul constantly torn by his selfish brutalities.

Never again would she make excuses for Larry. Never again would she tolerate the things that he did. Never again!

Thank goodness, she could face the truth at last!

Larry would continue to spend his income faster than he earned it.

Yet pursue his idea of a good time to the accompaniment of a tinkling glass, jazz and gay parties.

He'd shirk every bit of responsibility and dodge every important issue.

He'd be his own sweetly temperamental self until he was ruined.

Certainly it was time for her to take a hand in the situation.

Her tired brain whirled like a dynamo until she felt that at last she had a plan as far-reaching as the "Treaty of Versailles." The peace of the world wasn't as important as the peace in the Browning home.

He'd be his own sweetly temperamental self until he was ruined.

Larry hurried into the living room to find Pat gone.

She snatched a cup of coffee and then rushed to the garage and with a tiny feeling of misgiving, she drove the car out of the garage. Why should she always leave the car for Larry?

Byrd went directly to Progress-Peak's office and paid a second thousand on the house. That second payment, she felt, clinched the bargain.

The house was theirs!

Feeling like the rock of Gibraltar, she hurried back to the apartment to face Larry. A scared little smile evaporated almost instantly from her white face as she realized that he was going to have the shock of his life.

The pungent aroma of strong coffee was in the air as she walked into the apartment. Larry was in the kitchen, moving around awkwardly, getting his breakfast. He caught Byrd in his arms before she had a chance to say a word.

She pushed him away with a frown and a gesture, which said plainly that she would never again have a thing to do with him! But Larry held her all the more closely.

"It won't do you a bit of good," she said, as she held herself rigid in his arms.

"Byrdkins, darling, I'm frightfully sorry about last night," Larry leaned his cheek against hers, and there was contrition in every syllable.

Byrd was still like a stone in his arms.

"While you're eating your breakfast, we can discuss things," she said evenly.

His arms dropped to his side with a sudden hopeless gesture.

Byrd quickly recovered from the sensation that prickled through her heart. Larry could take things so pathetically!

She coddled the eggs and buttered the toast as she had done for him for six months, but her small features were chiselled out of white, cold marble.

Then she told Larry that she had decided they couldn't live together any longer. She couldn't endure their quarrels. She couldn't endure days of luxury, followed by days of poverty. She couldn't endure the worry of unpaid bills, of constant loans, of uncertain and questionable business ventures. She couldn't endure gin parties and India! She couldn't endure married life—any of it!

Then it was that Byrd got the shock of her life. For, instead of bridling with fury under the insults that she had poured over his head, Larry's face sobered instantly and whitened a little. He looked down at the fork which he held in his hand, making strange markings on the tablecloth.

Something seemed to catch in his throat.

"I know I'm no good," he said, finally, after a long silence, "and I don't blame you for quitting me. I'm sorry you married me, for you're too sweet and lovely for me. I'm a forethoughter, and a damned lazy one, at that. I don't blame you for leaving me. I'm a hopeless failure."

Byrd was staggered. She went white to the lips. She had never dared say one word in criticism of Larry without bringing a storm of denial and protest.

"You're not a failure!" Byrd retorted, with more spirit than she was aware of. "You've got more brains, charm and personality than any man I know. But you won't look at things like a sane, normal, balanced man. You're still a little boy, trying to get more than his share of fun out of life."

"You've been a brick," continued Larry, in a tone of abject self-accusation. "Let's try it again. I'll try to live the way that will make you happiest. Honest I will!"

"I don't want promises," said Byrd, deciding not to surrender too easily. "You've broken so many."

"Jack told me about the house," said Larry. "I understand it's a great bargain, and I'm glad you had the chance to buy it." Larry looked up at Byrd with a tiny, wistful smile in his dark eyes. "Went you give me credit for wanting a home, too?"

"And you aren't cross with me for buying it?" asked Byrd, haltingly.

Larry crossed the room quickly and lifted Byrd out of the chair at the end of the table.

"I'm proud of you for being smart enough to take it," he said, smiling into her eyes and kissing her lips.

Byrd felt as if she were about to collapse.

"It's the duckiest house you ever saw, Larry," she said, finally, as he released her and finished his breakfast. Her eyes were shining.

They sat close together on the davenport and discussed the house.

Byrd told Larry about her visit to Jacksonville and about the loan.

"Apply the whole of it on the house," he said, generously.

"Just part of it," smiled Byrd. "I want you to buy out Jack's interest in the Builder's stock."

Then she told him that her father, Mr. Hamilton, had decided that it would be to his advantage if he bought out Jack Duncan's interest. Byrd thought Jack would sell, for he was entirely engrossed in his real estate ventures.

"Father said that he advised you to sell your American Axle. It's doubled, you know. That will give you three thousand more to apply on the purchase of Jack's stock," said Byrd.

Byrd was sure she only imagined the quick, startled look Larry had given at her mention of the American Axle stock.

"I haven't sold it yet," said Larry, smoothly, "but I will, and I'll talk to Jack tomorrow about taking all of the Builder's stock."

A sudden feeling of relief swept through Byrd's little body.

"Now let's dish everything with a business tint and call this day ours," said Larry, blithely, as they started to wash the breakfast dishes.

They drove out to the little house and Byrd showed Larry every single detail. She told him all her plans for furnishing and decorating it.

Then they went to the big department stores and bought things, furniture, rugs and draperies.

As they sat in the office of the biggest household furnishing store in Ohio, waiting to open a charge account, Byrd's faith in Larry went soaring. The clerk, approached Larry diffidently, as if this handsome well-dressed young man was doing the firm a tremendous favor by giving them his patronage.

"We're delighted to have your business," the chinsless young man said, with a subservient smile, "and hope everything will be satisfactory, sir."

Larry's mere nod had all the condescension of a royal smile.

"Oh, Larry!" remarked Byrd, on the way home, "let's do something nice for dad! After all, he's been looking to us!"

"I know a way to tickle him pink and keep his bank account in the family," said Larry, with a mischievous smile in Byrd's direction.

Byrd looked mystified.

"A grandson!" Larry whispered in her ear.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 3.—Al Jolson, comedian of the stage, seems to have found his notch in films in roles shadowed with tragedy.

There was patinos in "The Jazz Singer" and in "The Singing Fool," and apparently there is to be more of it in his third talking production, "Mammy."

The story is in preparation and it will be just what the title suggests—woven about the mammy songs for which he is famous. A definite lineup on the picture will not be certain for a few weeks.

Because she has a "perfect voice" for the speaking films, Lois Wilson is wearing a smile these days. Time was when Lois used to mean that she wasn't being cast intelligently, but those days are gone forever, at least so she hopes. Her next talkie is to be "A Bird in the Hand."

when the completed scenario is submitted and Jolson comes from his honeymoon cottage at Palm Springs to discuss details.

Warner Brothers studio says that one thing is sure, however, and that is that the heart throbs brought about by the youth at the death of his father in "The Jazz Singer," and at the death of Sonny Boy in "The Singing Fool," are to be repeated in another form.

In the back files of a Los Angeles newspaper there is a picture of Al Jolson and Corinne Griffith, with Al demonstrating, intentionally, how much a stage actor doesn't know about a movie love scene.

Now, just five years later, he has taken his place as one of the outstanding film actors of the day. Without a doubt he has stepped to the front ranks, brought to the movies by his songs and kept there by his screen personality and the quality of his pictures.

Soprano, contralto, tenor alto and bass microphones to permit more accurate and lively smoother voice registration are the newest development in the making of talking motion pictures.

The assortment was prepared by acoustical engineers at the Paramount studios during the filming of "The Wolf of Wall Street." George Bancroft, the star, has a robust voice that was easy to record.

Bacchanova, on the other hand, has a voice of delicate softness that required a soprano microphone adjustment.

Still others in the cast required individual handling. The results obtained by use of the many instruments were said to have produced voice recordings more natural than ever before.

TO PASS SENTENCE ON GIBSON JAN. 12

Sentence will be passed by Federal Judge Benson Hough January 12 on John Wesley Gibson, Xenia, who pleaded guilty Saturday to an indictment returned by the December federal grand jury at Columbus charging him with altering a war compensation certificate.

Department of justice agents say that Gibson, who was arrested here by Sheriff Ohmer Tate and a government agent, borrowed money on his insurance policy before the time specified, by changing the date on the certificate.

FIRST 1929 FIRE AT BICE RESIDENCE

Xenia's first fire in 1929 was recorded at 2:24 p. m. Wednesday when firemen were summoned to the home of J. B. Bice, 604 N. King St., where sparks from a flue ignited a shingle roof causing $3 damage. The family was burning out the flue and the sparks set fire to the roof in different spots. Firemen used a two and one-half gallon chemical to extinguish the blaze.

XENIA TREES UNIQUE LEARNED ON TOUR

County Commissioner Herman Favey, returning home by motor Tuesday after spending the week end at Canton, O., 150 miles distant from Xenia, declared that only two cities through which he passed on the trip carried out a street decoration scheme which approached that of Xenia in reflecting the Christmas spirit. Massillon was one of the cities.

During the holiday period, Xenia's business section, following an annual custom adopted by local merchants, was early decorated with lighted Christmas trees placed in front of practically every business house.

Perfect Health is always refreshing

If you are tired—lack pep—if your skin is not clear—if your appetite is "gone"—you owe it to yourself and friends to try S.S.S. Its tonic effects will surprise you.

When your system is filled with rich, red blood, you don't have that tired, languid feeling when you awake in the morning.

Instead, you feel refreshed; ready to meet the world!

Your appetite is keen, you enjoy work or play. Your skin is clear—checks naturally rosy.

All this because rich, red blood is Nature's substance for building and sustaining the body.

Thousands have regained their strength and charm by taking a few bottles of S.S.S.—Nature's own tonic for restoring the appetite—building strength—and clearing the body of so-called skin troubles.

You know a clear skin comes from within. Correct the cause—thru the blood—and pimples, boils, eczema, and that sallow complexion will disappear.

For more than 100 years S.S.S.

has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I was troubled with pimples and blackheads. I took a course of S.S.S. It cleared my face and back. I think S.S.S. is wonderful. I have told many friends about S.S.S., and they are getting as much benefit as I did."

—Miss Ruth Gahn, 1134 Elden Ave., Los Angeles, Calif.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

DEATH SUMMONS CAROLINE LEACH AT HOME ON THURSDAY

Mrs. Caroline Leach, 73, passed away at her home on the Fairground Road, near the Xenia corporation line, Thursday morning at 12:10 o'clock. Death followed a week's illness from bronchitis.

Mrs. Leach's husband preceded her in death several years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Leach moved to Xenia from the New Jasper neighborhood about ten years ago and the family is well known in the county.

Surviving are seven children, four daughters and three sons: Mrs. Cora Kinnison, Cedarville; Mrs. Alice Huston, Selma and Mrs. Fay Murray, who with her husband, resides at the Leach home; Charles and Burges Leach, near Jamestown and Harvey Leach, Cleveland.

Mrs. Leach was a member of the Church of Christ, Grape Grove. Funeral services will be held Saturday at 1 p. m. at the residence, with burial in Milledgeville, Cemetery.

TO PASS SENTENCE ON GIBSON JAN. 12

Sentence will be passed by Federal Judge Benson Hough January 12 on John Wesley Gibson, Xenia, who pleaded guilty Saturday to an indictment returned by the December federal grand jury at Columbus charging him with altering a war compensation certificate.

Department of Justice agents say that Gibson, who was arrested here by Sheriff Ohmer Tate and a government agent, borrowed money on his insurance policy before the time specified, by changing the date on the certificate.

FIRST 1929 FIRE AT BIGE RESIDENCE

Xenia's first fire in 1929 was recorded at 2:24 p. m. Wednesday when firemen were summoned to the home of J. B. Bice, 604 N. King St., where sparks from a fire ignited a shingle roof causing $3 damage. The family was burning out the fire and the sparks set fire to the roof in different spots. Firemen used a two and one-half gallon chemical to extinguish the blaze.

XENIA TREES UNIQUE LEARNED ON TOUR

County Commissioner Herman Bavey, returning home by motor Tuesday after spending the week end at Canton, O., 150 miles distant from Xenia, declared that only two cities through which he passed on the trip carried out a street decoration scheme which approached that of Xenia in reflecting the Christmas spirit. Massillon was one of the cities.

During the holiday period, Xenia's business section, following an annual custom adopted by local merchants, was gaily decorated with lighted Christmas trees placed in front of practically every business house.

Perfect Health is always refreshing

If you are tired—lack pep—if your skin is not clear—if your appetite is "gone"—you owe it to yourself and friends to try S.S.S. Its tonic effects will surprise you.

WHEN your system is filled with rich, red blood, you don't have that tired, languid feeling when you awake in the morning.

Instead, you feel refreshed; ready to meet the world!

Your appetite is keen, you enjoy work or play. Your skin is clear—cheeks naturally rosy.

All this because rich, red blood is Nature's substance for building and sustaining the body.

Thousands have regained their strength and charm by taking a few bottles of S.S.S.—Nature's own tonic for restoring the appetite—building strength—and clearing the body of so-called skin troubles.

You know a clear skin comes from within. Correct the cause—thru the blood—and pimples, boils, eczema and that sallow complexion will disappear.
